Being 'McHappy'

Attention all hamburger lovers! Mayor William M. Oakley has officially proclaimed Sunday, April 27, as McHappy Day in the City of Romulus. On that day, the elected city officials pictured will be on hand to greet customers, take orders, give away balloons, flip hamburgers and wait on tables in celebration of McDonald's 25th anniversary. But more importantly, 25 cents from the sale of each Big Mac that day will be donated to Detroit's newly-opened Ronald McDonald House. The house, which is located adjacent to Children's Hospital in Detroit, provides a temporary home for families while their children are receiving treatment at the hospital. The project is operated by Children's Oncology Services of Michigan, a volunteer group, many of whom have had children hospitalized at Children's Hospital. The cost to stay at the facility is only $7 per night, which only pays the utility bills. The remainder of the expense of operating the $900,000 facility must be donated. McDonald's of Michigan has taken on that responsibility in cooperation with the Detroit Lions and numerous service clubs and organizations from throughout the State. So, mark your calendars, and come to McDonald's of Romulus, 9777 S. Wayne Road, on Sunday, buy a Big Mac and help support the Ronald McDonald House. Teachers end strike; Return to classroom

Teachers in the Romulus school system returned to classrooms Monday morning, evidently yielding to an ultimatum from the school board to give up their 6-week strike or face dismissal charges.

The same situation prevailed in the Southgate, Woodhaven and Gibraltar School districts where teachers left picket lines and returned to teaching duties.

First reports last Thursday were that teachers had agreed to a 9-point proposal worked out by Wayne County Circuit Court Judge Thomas Roumell and would resume teaching while negotiations were being carried out.

However, Interim Romulus School Supt. Marvin Fischer said the Romulus school board had not agreed to Judge Roumell's plan and that teachers had returned to classrooms in response to the ultimatum issued by that body. School heads in the other three districts echoed Fischer's remarks.

"Our teaching staff returned this morning," said Fischer Monday, "and I've received reports of only minimal absences by teachers. Those absences were due to illness and teachers now on leaves."

Fischer said "nearly normal attendance" was recorded at schools who had reported to his office Monday morning.

The superintendent said he does not anticipate "intensive negotiations" on a new teacher contract, but said the school board will work with the mediator assigned to the case.

Teachers in the four school districts walked out March 10 on orders from the 14-school district Wayne County-Michigan Education Association-National Education Association (WC-MEA-NEA), the union groups representing teachers.

The group was formed last year with hopes that its larger membership would provide more clout at the bargaining table.

Although teachers in the four districts walked out in unison, the boards of education in each district waged separate legal battles in Wayne County Circuit Court to stop the strike.

In Woodhaven, a total of 13 teachers were jailed, but were released last week in time to make up their minds on nearly identical ultimatums issued by school boards in each of the four school districts.

Commenting on the strike's end, Fischer said: "I'm happy that teachers came back to work so students can be taught as much education as possible in the time left."

"I hope that the balance of the school year will be as normal as possible."

Teachers in the Romulus school district returned to classes one week ahead of the April 28 deadline set by the school board, after which they would have faced possible discharge.

Tax cut for home improvements? It's a possibility

By BOB AMEEN
ANP Staff Writer

Someday, residents of Romulus and every community in Michigan, even the nation, may be rewarded with a tax cut for improvements they make to their places of residence.

In most communities, home improvements result in higher assessments and higher property taxes. Homeowners lament and bemoan being penalized for making their houses and communities more attractive.

But, all is not lost! In the immediate area two champions of the people have emerged to crusade for a tax break for homeowners not content to let their houses deteriorate and depreciate in value.

Romulus Treasurer Beverly McAnally has long been an advocate of giving tax cuts to conscientious homeowners who improve their properties.

Although she is joining a similar movement by Dearborn Mayor John B. Reilly, she favors a different approach.

McAnally wants state laws changed to permit the granting of tax incentives to homeowners, similar to those now granted industrial and commercial property owners under Public Act 198.

Reilly supports the listing of home improvements before and after 1976 by residents in his city, hoping to use the total amount as a deduction against the new state equalized valuation of property. Resulting lower property assessments would then mean decreased taxes.

McAnally says although she is sympathetic to Reilly's efforts, she feels his method is "circumventing" current state laws.

"I would not be satisfied with anything less than a change in state law that would make property tax breaks legal and proper. I wouldn't want to follow another plan, go to court, and take a chance of losing," she explained.

Actually, Romulus City Council did take action on the matter last Oct. 23 when it unanimously approved research on property tax incentives by the city attorney. The motion was made by McAnally, then a member of council, and seconded by Junior Block.

However, the treasurer commented, little has happened since. She said the city attorney advised her that nothing could be done legally on a local basis to implement such a program.

McAnally got little encouragement from Sen. William Faust's office. She was told it would be difficult to change state law to bring about property tax cuts because of the resulting loss in revenues to the state.

The treasurer said Romulus is not a typical community in that a large

Educating handicapped son creates dilemma for family

By BOB AMEEN
ANP Staff Writer

A Romulus mother, desperate after failure to get proper help and schooling for her 15-year-old son in Michigan, said she and her husband were forced to lie to get the boy into a special Boston, Mass., school.

Mrs. Doris Moir said she had been notified by the Boston school that she and her husband, Sherman, were not residents of Massachusetts and had until April 23 to come to Boston and get the bag.

The mother is in a dilemma. She is overjoyed that her son finally is receiving excellent care and would like to leave him there. If she does, she fears being charged with abandonment of her son, Curtis. If she brings him home to Romulus, she worries that she and her husband will again face the ordeal of trying to find adequate help and schooling for him.

Compounding the Moirs' problems are the thousands of dollars poured out by the couple in moves to Arizona and North Carolina in attempts to get proper care for Curtis, the mother said.

Currently, the father, a painter, is unemployed, and the mother quit her job to devote her time to their afflicted son.

Last week, the couple and a few friends demonstrated outside of the Wayne County Intermediate School District headquarters in Wayne after they said the agency failed to help them.

Although a man whom the couple described as "probably the top man" came out and told them several facilities were available to help their child, they said two of four other persons said a lack of funds existed, and all four agreed no facilities from the intermediate district could help the boy.

On Monday morning, Harry Salsinger, director of public information services for the Wayne County Intermediate School District, said he knew of the Moir child and the demonstration staged Thursday at the WCISD headquarters.

Salsinger explained that Curtis had been in three programs administered by the intermediate district, but that his parents had taken him out of all three.

"His parents took him out of our programs each time. On one occasion, they took him to the Michigan School for the Blind in Lansing where they claim he was abused. They later brought Curtis back here, but eventually they took him to Boston," Salsinger said.

The Moirs argued that physical abuse suffered by their son, both at the school in Lansing and the Southgate Regional Center was the reason why they took their son out of the program. They exhibited photographs of the alleged abuse at both places.

Salsinger said the intermediate district had given Curtis "all kinds of examinations and treatment" and had thoroughly reviewed his case.

"The boy is retarded," Salsinger said. "When I checked into his case, I found that our program was attempting to improve his toilet training."

He said five programs are operated by the intermediate district for "multiply-impaired" students, which include those who are deaf, blind, retarded, or who have more than one handicap or impairment.

"If the Moirs wish to bring their son back to the intermediate school district, we have a program for him. If it's not the type of program they want, there is nothing more that we can do for them."

"If the Moirs are not satisfied with our programs, I suggest that they appeal for help to the State Board of Education and the State Legislature for a special program," Salsinger emphasized.

Counting the three programs at the intermediate school district, Michigan School for the Blind, Southgate Regional Center, and the state-run Plymouth Center for Human Development in Plymouth, Salsinger said the Moirs have had their son in six different programs to his knowledge.

The Moirs also said they had Curtis at Riley Elementary School in Allen Park in a day care-type program which they did not feel provided adequate care and schooling.

Frank Curry, special education director for the Romulus Community Schools, said he was not aware of the Moir boy's problems, but said, "the parents should have called him first and are welcome to do so now."

"As too often happens in these cases, parents start at the top. Sometimes it works and sometimes it doesn't," he said. "If the Moirs bring their child back to Romulus, I would like them to call me as we work closely with the intermediate district."

Moir said he and his wife are spearheading efforts for funds to create a special program to assist children like Curtis.

Mrs. Moir said deaf and blind children can be taught, but said a school in Lansing and the Southgate

3 to vie for RCS ed board

One incumbent and two challengers will seek two 4-year seats on the Romulus Board of Education in the June 9 school election. Last Monday was the deadline for filing.

Seeking the open berths are incumbent Shirley A. Lombardi, board secretary; Richard J. Zavodsky, a General Motors Co. employee; and Richard Campbell, active with We the People.

Margaret Cole, board treasurer, is not running for re-election.

Winners of the two seats will face a challenge in the Romulus school system now closed down with the teacher strike, and whose finances, like many other districts, is being strained to the limit.

Also on the immediate horizon is the naming of a new superintendent to replace James Garfield, who asked to be relieved of the school district's top post and placed in a lesser administrative position. He now functions as an assistant to interim superintendent Marvin Fischer.

Fischer is among the group of candidates who will be considered by the school board for superintendent.

Regional Center where her boy had been placed only set them back.

The father urged parents of children like Curtis and other concerned citizens to contact him so all could unite in efforts to start a special program.

"If they can't donate money, I would appreciate their moral support," he said.

The Moirs are immensely pleased with gains made by Curtis in Boston after some nine weeks there.

"He's improved 500 percent," Mrs. Moir exclaimed.

Mrs. Moir said they want to get Curtis into a residential program in the tri-county area (Wayne, Oakland or Macomb). She said it is difficult to take care of her son at home.

WEDNESDAY,
APRIL 23
Read Psalm 61

"Yes, he alone is my Rock, my rescuer, defense and fortress. Why then should I be tense with fear when troubles come?" (Psalm 62:2 TLB)

After moving from our hometown of many years, I was adjusting to a new community and a new job experience in a school in the city. The strain of early bus duty, several negative comments from well-meaning veteran teachers, and constant hassles with uninterested students had left me feeling drained at the end of the day. Adding to my discouragement, the view from my kitchen window was very bleak, with winter lingering on much too long.

As I lean against the refrigerator and looked up through the trees, I noticed the white steeple of a nearby church. I had stood near that spot at the sink every day, but I had never noticed the steeple. A large oak tree completely blocked the view. By leaning just a little to the left, I saw a whole new view.

So it was with the way the Lord works. When things get too hectic and tend to be going wrong, how it helps to lean a little in another direction. New strength flowed to me as I realized the Lord had already made note of my struggles and was ready to meet them with me.

PRAYER: Thank You, Lord, for life's struggles. May they lead us closer to You. Amen.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY: When discouragement comes, lean toward God.

Educating son creates dilemma for family

She said the couple's two other sons, Timothy, 16, and Keith, 14, also have physical problems. Timothy has dyslexia, an affliction in which he sees inverted images, while Keith has both of his kidneys on his right side.

The Moirs claimed they got "no help" from Sen. William Faust's office and that Gov. William Milliken's office had given them "false information."

The Moirs said their complaints of abuse to Curtis at the Michigan School for the Blind and the Southgate Regional Center were to no avail as investigations of the incidents failed to bring results.

With her husband now unemployed and no financial support being received from Social Security or any other agency, Mrs. Moir said their family situation is in dire straits.

"Our neighbors think we are irrational and over-reactive," Mrs. Moir said.

She claimed the physical beating Curtis received at Southgate Regional Center prevented a cornea transplant operation that might have given her son sight.

She explained that doctors had hoped to transplant part of Curtis' left eye in his right eye, but that a blood clot ruined that opportunity.

Mrs. Moir produced a letter from the State Department of Social Services, stating it had investigated bruises it admitted were received by Curtis at Southgate, but could not "substantiate either abuse or neglect in this incident."

The mother said the moves to Arizona and North Carolina were "hard on the kids" because of the changing of schools and local environment.

Correspondence exhibited by the Moirs also showed that among placed they contacted were: Michigan Senate; Truman Medical Center, Kansas City, Mo.; Congressman William D. Ford and State Department of Education.

The father, who said he belongs to the local Masonic Lodge the Sportsmen's Club, wants to sponsor benefits to raise money to start a special program for children like Curtis.

"Children like our son can be taught, but many are going backwards in programs where they are out of place and don't fit in," contended Mrs. Moir.

chunk of its territory is taken up by Detroit Metropolitan Airport. In addition, the city is cut up by several expressways.

The airport and expressways serve the members of the general public to a greater degree than individual residents of Romulus, she emphasized, making the city more deserving of special consideration.

"Federal, state and county governments are eroding our local jurisdictions and jeopardizing local influence and local control of city governments," declared the treasurer.

She explained that it was difficult, usually impossible, for a local government to legislate against imposition of such facilities as a solid waste disposal plant or a nuclear plant.

'KWIK Helpers' are quick to help

Area residents seeing signs advertising a car wash, rummage sale or what have you being conducted by the KWIK Helpers CB Club would do well to patronize those projects.

The Romulus-based club, according to James Shelton, president, is a non-profit organization which financially helps a lengthy list of individuals and groups through donations raised in various club projects.

Shelton said the list includes charitable groups, needy organizations and families, residents burned out of homes, the blind, the Muscular Dystrophy Association, crippled children and American Cancer Society to name a few.

He said the club's annual "coffee break dance" next June 7 will be an opportunity for area residents to donate articles and merchandise that can be raffled off to raise money.

At the coffee break, two of four nominees will be chosen as "a dirty ole' man" and "a dirty ole' lady."

Currently, all four nominees are staging various activities to collect funds for KWIK. The two with the most funds raised will be awarded a trophy, Shelton explained.

Nominated for "dirty ole' man" and "dirty ole' lady" are Donna Burke (Belleville Bunny), Shelly Flowers (Sunflower), Samuel Britton (Landtracker) and Claude Holcomb (Sarge).

As now scheduled, Burke (Belleville Bunny) will hold a roller skating party at Sumpter Roller Rink from 6-9 p.m. May 18 and Britton (Landtracker) will hold a party at VFW Hall in Romulus May 24.

Shelton said that persons unable to attend any of KWIK's fund-raising projects can send donations to KWIK Helpers CB Club, P.O. Box 282, Romulus 48174.

Club officers are Shelton, president; Barbara Schultz, vice-president; Shellya Shelton, secretary; Orletta Holcomb, treasurer; Gary Snider, chairman, and Burke, trustee.

Of cable TV firms

Western 5 to hear proposals

Cable television slowly but surely is making headway into eventual installation in the townships of Van Buren, Sumpter and Huron and the cities of Belleville and Romulus.

Tomorrow, Henry Redman, director of the Western Five Community Conference, will present a preliminary evaluation of written proposals received from three cable television companies who responded to an ad in local newspapers to elected officials of those communities.

Elected officials will take the evaluations back to their respective city councils and township boards for review and study, Redman explained.

Two immediate options are available to local communities seeking cable TV for their residents — granting a fixed-period franchise to a cable TV firm, or to install it themselves.

The latter course could involve several million dollars in cost and, in most instances, would be impractical. That leaves the granting of a franchise, a prize plum which cable TV companies throughout the nation are attempting to obtain in thousands of communities.

At last month's regular session, the Western Five Board of Directors voted to have ads put in local newspapers requesting written proposals from cable TV companies for its installation as a package for all five communities.

Actually, Western Five is in the exploratory stage for seeking a common cable TV network for all five communities. Romulus is reported to be leaning toward going it alone, with some officials in that community feeling that the sparse population of Sumpter and Huron townships might deter cable TV firms from putting installations in those areas.

Western Five is a consortium founded by Redman with the aid of federal grants for the express purpose of obtaining grants more rapidly and easily and saving money for its five members through large fleet purchases of equipment and lower premiums on large insurance policies.

A day-long conference in Troy early this month on cable TV attracted representatives from several dozen communities, including Redman. Sponsored by SEMCOG, Wayne-Westland Community Schools, Michigan Township Association and the Michigan Municipal League, the meeting was designed to inform those who attended on the pros and cons of cable TV.

Filtering through from the several speeches presented was a warning to communities to hold back and investigate before plunging into action to award a cable TV franchise.

Most communities desire cable TV strictly for entertainment purposes. But, not all. In Westland, Mayor Tom Taylor has a revolutionary plan calling for cable TV installation by the city and a hookup with local residences to "read" meters, and provide smoke detectors and security systems.

Although Taylor's visionary concept could well become the thing of the future, most communities are interested primarily in the entertainment aspects of the new way to transmit television.

Described simply, cable TV receives transmissions from a satellite in space through a large master antenna. These electronic signals are transmitted via cables similar to telephone wires to individual homes.

A nominal charge is assessed by each cable TV firm for original installation, with monthly charges running about $7-8, per month. Another $7-8 per month is charged to subscribers who want home box office movies.

Emphasized at last month's session of Western Five is the need to proceed now and not let the matter drag on.

One way or another, it appears that residents of the Western Five area will have cable TV in their homes in the near future.

Benefit concert aids Reye's research

The Michigan Chapter of the National Reye's Syndrome Foundation will be the beneficiary of a concert, planned for 4:30 p.m. Sunday at Huron High School, located on Huron River Drive just west of Middlebelt Road, New Boston.

Entertainment will be by David Walz, singer and songwriter who also works at the Ford Wayne Assembly Plant and lives in New Boston. Walz performs at the Nankin Mills Lounge in Westland and has made several radio and television appearances.

Walz will be joined by "Fat" Bob Taylor, the Singing Plumber, and Joe Prater and the Huron Valley Boys.

Tickets cost $4 and are available at the Ann Arbor Farmer's Market, at Pickin' Music in New Boston, or by calling 455-7024 or 753-4371. Tickets also will be available at the door.

Area volunteers kick off ACS fund raiser

More than 345 Romulus residents, volunteering for the American Cancer Society during Cancer Control Month, are visiting their neighbors between now and April 27, during the society's annual educational and fund-raising drive.

Mrs. Marsha Gilstaf, 1980 Community chairperson, and Mrs. Gladys Hodniah, Mrs. Marie Moomaw, Mrs. Christine Papich and Mrs. Dorothy Dingman, district chairpersons, are spearheading the campaign to raise $1,000. Last year, $882 was raised.

Overall in Wayne County, the society is hoping to raise $115,500 with its house-to-house solicitation and an additional $201,500 through other means.

In addition to the fund-raising aspect of the campaign, volunteers going door-to-door also provide life-saving information regarding cancer's safeguards and its warning signals. Each volunteer has an official American Cancer Society kit and wearing an American Cancer Society identification badge.

The American Cancer Society receives no funds from the United Foundation or the federal government and is dependent on the contributions of individuals. This year, the society will spend $1.2 million on research projects at Michigan State University, the University of Michigan and Wayne State University. Additionally, local services to cancer patients and their families are available at no charge as are a variety of educational programs for all age groups. Last year the American Cancer Society educated 169,759 youth and 151,906 adults in metro-Detroit with programs in area high schools, elementary schools and work places.

Reservations currently are being taken. Those interested in the trip can contact the senior center, located at 36515 Bibbins St., at 941-0666, ext. 257.

The Romulus Parks and Recreation Department is planning an adult evening for June 4 at a popular Windsor, Ont., dinner club, to be followed by a 2½-hour cruise down the Detroit River.

Dancing and a cash bar will be available aboard the ship. The $14 per person charge includes the dinner and cruise. Transportation to Windsor is not included in the cost.

According to farm women

Agriculture : Michigan's second largest industry

Agriculture is Michigan's second largest industry, bringing an estimated $10 billion into the state's economy annually.

A unique combination of geographical, physical and climatic conditions has kept the state consistently among the top producer of a great variety of commodities, ranking second only to California in the variety of farm products. In fact, some 50 agricultural food crops are commercially grown in the state.

That's surprising information, and the kind the Michigan Farm Bureau Women want presented to the state's residents as part of Agriculture Understanding Day April 30.

Michigan ranks among the top 10 states as a producer of more than 50 farm crops, leading the nation in the production of red tart cherries, processing cucumbers, dry edible navy beans, blueberries and Eastern soft white winter wheat.

With the combination of employees on the farm and those involved in the transportation of farm commodities, the manufacture and sale of farm machinery, essential supplies of agricultural chemicals, food processors, wholesalers and retailers, Michigan's agricultural industry impacts on the livelihood of 27 percent of the state's wage earners, according to Joan Sayre of the Wayne County Farm Bureau Women.

A resident of Belleville, Mrs. Sayre noted that Wayne County, despite its heavy concentration of industry also fairs well in agricultural production. The county has farms producing field crops of corn, wheat, oats, soybeans, straw and hay, vegetables such as tomatoes, several varieties of green beans, wax beans, sweet corn, peas, lima beans, squash, peppers, greens, okra, cabbage, broccoli, cauliflower, carrots, onions, potatoes, cucumbers, asparagus, turnips, roman beans and black-eyed peas; and fruits such as strawberries, cherries, raspberries, apples, rhubarb, concord grapes, muskmelons and watermelons.

Mrs. Sayre added that county farmers also maintain sod farms, nurseries, and a few dairy, hog and turkey farms.

Not bad for a county whose residents' livelihood all but resolves around the auto industry.

Mrs. Sayre is quick to add that the largest agricultural business in the county is the growing of bedding plants in numerous greenhouses scattered throughout the county. Every imaginable type of flowering plant and vegetable is grown for home gardens and a "beautiful yard".

"A great way for city people to get out in the country is to visit a pick-your-own farm," she added. "These farms have grown in the past decade to become another large agricultural business which services many families."

"Freshness of produce, as well as economy of price brings families out to the farms from the start of the strawberry season in June until late fall."

Mrs. Sayre added that the 1980 edition of "Michigan Country Carrousel", the latest directory of pick-your own farms with addresses and phone numbers, can be obtained free of charge through the Michigan Department of Agriculture. Also available free of charge are "Michigan Food Facts" and a recipe book, "Cook's Tour of Good Things Growing in Michigan". All three can be obtained through the Michigan Department of Agriculture, Communications Office, Lewis Cass Building, P.O. Box 30017, Lansing 48909.

"Michigan farmers are proud of their industry and would like to take this opportunity to you, as consumers, and we appreciate your support," Mrs. Sayre said. "You buy food and fiber grown on our farms, and that is how we stay in business."

"We will continue to produce the healthy kinds of products you want and need, and at the most reasonable prices, provided the weather is good and we can get the necessary fuel and fertilizer."

"We will keep trying, if you will continue to support us by purchasing our products."

Considering the types of food we're eating, it won't be hard to continue to support our farmers.

Scouts conduct cleanup

The Scouts of Cub Scout Pack 1739 recently held a cleanup of the field behind the Romulus VFW Post Hall on Huron River Drive, filling a dumpster with trash and removing a bit of money from the field.

The VFW Post 9586 is the sponssoring institution of the pack, and the cleanup is a way the Scouts say thank you for making Scouting happen for them.

March turned out to be a rough month for the pack which saw its monthly meeting cancelled because of the ongoing teachers strike. The cleanup project, originally scheduled for March 29, was rained out, but with cooperation of the weatherman, the Scouts were able to go their good turn on April 1.

Aside from the trash the youngsters collected, Scout Terry Hix and Den 5 Leader Cindy Caines each found $5 bills. Many other Scouts cashed in on the returnable bottles and cans they collected.

A spokesman for the pack said the Cubs and their leaders "can hardly wait for May and the City of Romulus Cleanup Campaign".

Energy essay contest set

High school juniors and seniors throughout the state will be able to compete for 10 scholarships, totalling $30,000, by entering the first Michigan High School Energy Awareness Scholarship Contest by its June 1 application deadline.

Sponsored by the Governor's Energy Awareness Advisory Committee, a non-profit corporation charged with increasing public awareness of our national and state energy situations, the contest will be an integral part of a series of statewide consumer expositions to be held this fall.

The contest will consist of two categories — an energy awareness brochure and an energy demonstration project — and will offer a $5,000 scholarship to the state winner in each. Four state finalists in both categories will receive $2,500 scholarships.

Each project will be judged regionally prior to the state finals and may be displayed at energy expos to be held in Marquette Sept. 12-14, Traverse City Sept. 19-21, Flint Oct. 2-5, Grand Rapids Oct. 23-26 and Detroit Nov. 13-16.

In the first category, brochures, pamphlets, or flyers which can be printed in one or two colors of ink, will be judged on the basis of the basic idea, the written material, the graphics and art work, as well as the feasibility of widely distributing the entry as presented.

Entries must describe, in words, drawings or photos, possible means of energy conservation or energy production through alternative resources in Michigan.

Energy demonstration projects must explain energy conservation or use of alternative energy resources in Michigan through a scientific display or an audio-visual presentation.

Projects in this category will be judged on the basis of creative and technical ability, thoroughness, skill, clarity and dramatic value. Each project must be accompanied by a written summary describing the work.

Subject areas from which a project may be developed are unlimited. For example, energy conservation topics may touch on use of energy in the home, on the road, in agriculture, in food processing, in the design of clothing, or in recreation.

Gould is named plant manager

A native of Detroit, Gould was graduated from the University of Detroit in 1960 with a bachelor's degree in marketing, business education and economics. He received his master's degree in marketing and economics in 1964 from the University of Michigan.

Westlander awarded managerial certificate

The Chevrolet-Livonia Plant and the Detroit Institute of Technology (DIT) have awarded "management certificates" to 11 employees, including Westlander Lucian Wilson, who have reached milestones on their way to a college degree.

The certificates, presented to the employees by Dr. Robert Ellis, DIT vice president, represent 20 hours of college credit, a third of the number needed for an associate's degree.

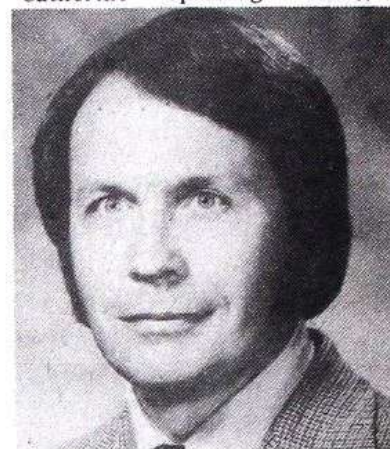

The honored employees include Wilson, an employee in spring production, along with Gerald Bennet, traffic, Canton; Maureen Chase, personnel, Canton; Larry Casterline, plant engineering, Dearborn Heights, and Ledell Edwards, plant engineering, Redford Township.

"These students have been taking classes and working full time for the past year and a half," said B.J. Kearney, Livonia plant manager. "That's the long, hard way to earn a college degree. We decided to award these special certificates in recognition of their efforts."

New businesses

'Ye Olde Munchie Madness'

If you're looking for the proverbial eternal optimist, stop at 32102 Michigan Ave., West where Leo Dockett and his partner, Bill Bray, have opened up "Ye Olde Munchie Madness" restaurant.

Who in these trying and depressing economic times would venture into a new business?

"I know," admits Dockett, "that times are rough. But I feel the city and the area needs a restaurant like the one Billy and I have opened up here."

"And, you know, even though this is our first venture in the restaurant business, we find it quite exciting."

Dockett said he and his partner are former truck drivers and during their years on the road began to appreciate good food. They hope to provide just that — good food — and a little bit more — good conversation in their new endeavor.

The breakfast menu is complete with eggs, steak, pancakes — you name it, Dockett and Bray will serve it.

"But we also have real homemade bread and homemade biscuits," Dockett said, "something everyone who has been on the road will appreciate."

The restaurant which is located between Merriman and Venoy rds., is open 22 hours, from 6 a.m. until 4 a.m. And there are carryouts, too.

Soaring gasoline prices changes driving habits

Gasoline price hikes over the past year have changed the driving habits of 87 percent of all car owners, with seven out of ten of those affected now driving less than they did a year ago, according to the results of a survey by the Gallup Organization, Inc.

Most motorists who are driving less report they have cut down on weekend and social driving (63%), shopping trips by car (49%), or are taking shorter vacation trips by car (18%). Twelve percent said they have cut out vacation driving altogether.

Of those who drove to work alone a year ago, 20 percent said someone in their family has stopped auto solo commuting, but 72 percent still are driving to work alone in spite of higher gasoline prices. Of the 20 percent who stopped driving to work alone, three quarters (76%) are pooling rides and 14 percent said they have switched to public transportation for the work trip.

The Gallup survey, commissioned by the Highway Users Federation, is based on personal interviews with 1,572 adults between February 29 and March 7, 1980. Percentages are subject to a sampling error of plus or minus two percentage points.

Nearly two-thirds (64%) registered strong opposition to the idea of a 50 cent-a-gallon additional gasoline tax to encourage energy conservation. Another 15 percent were "somewhat" against it.

Only eight percent said they favor such a tax.

On the prospects for further cuts in driving, 73 percent of car owners said they could still eliminate some driving, but 23 percent said they would have to cut necessary trips to reduce present car use.

Nearly a third (32%) of those in households earning less than $10,000 a year said they could make no further cuts in driving without eliminating necessary trips. About one-third (34%) of the car owners said they could reduce their driving by between one and 10 percent, and almost one-quarter (23%) said they could cut their car use by 11-25 percent. Only 16 percent said they could cut their present driving by more than a quarter.

The change in driving habits was found to be most influenced by annual household income, with those earning less than $20,000 a year significantly more affected by higher gasoline prices than the affluent. According to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, the national average price of a gallon of gasoline was 70.7 cents in February of 1979, and had risen to $1.186 by February of 1980, a 47.9 cent per gallon increase in a year.

The Highway Users Federation, a national, nonprofit organization promoting more efficient highway transportation, commissioned the survey to determine the likely success of various fuel conservation programs.

Builders to discuss 'plans for survival'

The Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan (BASM) will discuss strategies for survival and innovative home financing at a general membership meeting, set for 5 p.m., Monday, April 28, at the Northfield Hilton Inn, 5500 Crooks Road at I-75, Troy, Mich.

BASM President Otto Binggeser said that building, real estate, financial and legal specialists will speak on roll over mortgages, new rules and regulations for savings and loan associations, land contracts, Michigan State Housing Development Authority (MSHDA) financing, graduated payment mortgages, and proposed updates of the Brooke-Cranston GNMA Tandem Program.

"These experts will alert us to the advantages, warn us of the pitfalls, and give us the inside information on whether 'creative financing' is just a catch phrase or has real potential in this market," Binggeser explained.

He reported that 300 home builders, developers, apartment owners and managers, suppliers and contractors are expected to attend.

BASM serves a seven-county area, including Wayne, Oakland, Macomb, St. Clair, Livingston, Washtenaw, and Monroe.

The April 28 program features cocktails and dinner at 5 and 6 p.m., respectively.

Reservations can be made by sending a check for $14.50 to the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan, 804 One Northland Plaza, Southfield, Michigan 48075, or by calling 569-0644.

Lambert appears in EMU's 'Look Homeward, Angel'

ROBERT LAMBERT

Romulus resident Robert Lambert recently appeared in the Eastern Michigan University Players' production of Ketti Frings' adaptation of Thomas Wolfe's "Look Homeward, Angel". Lambert, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Lambert of Westvale, Romulus, played the leading role of Eugene Gant, a 17-year-old youth who wants desperately to escape from his familial surroundings.

An EMU freshman, majoring in speech and dramatic arts, Lambert has appeared at Greenfield Village in the "Townhall Variety Series". He is a member of the EMU Madrigal Singers and the University Choir.

Also on the college scene: Four Belleville-Romulus residents were among some 4,000 University of Michigan Students recognized at the university's annual Honors Convocation March 28.

Belleville residents Mark Alan Beattie of Rustic Lane North and Timothy James McClelland of Bedell received class honors, while Lauren Gerard Nowak of Willis Road was named an Angell Scholar for maintaining an all-A record for two or more consecutive terms as an undergraduate.

Romulus resident Adrien Gladys Beregsassy of Brandt earned class honors.

Belleville resident Michael A. Kotlarczyk has been named to the Dean's Honor Roll for the winter term at Lawrence Institute of Technology.

To be named to the honor roll he had to maintain at least a 3.5 grade point average.

Five Western Wayne county residents are among 1,485 students who are scheduled to receive their degrees this spring at Michigan State University in East Lansing.

The degree candidates included David Grandison of Wear Road, Belleville, doctor of medicine; Alfred Wesley of Arkuna, Belleville, bachelor of science in civil engineering; Michael Hillyer of Sheeks Road, Flat Rock, bachelor of arts in financial administration; Susan Moser of James Street, Flat Rock, bachelor of science in resource development; and David Wirgau of Magnolia, Flat Rock, bachelor of science in agribusiness and natural resources.

Romulus resident Linda L. Grundy of Brownstown Street has been awarded her bachelor of science degree in nursing from Wayne State University in Detroit. Ms. Grundy collected her degree during commencement ceremonies Dec. 18 at Cobo Hall.

Woodcocks surveyed

"Woodcocks at Dusk" is the title of a family nature program to be presented at the nature center of Oakwoods Metropark near Flat Rock on Saturday at 7 p.m.

Join naturalists Bob Wittersheim and Fred Wooley for a fascinating look at the mysterious courtship rites of the American woodcock. The evening of outdoor adventure will also consist of star gazing, owl calling and amphibian voice identification.

Advance registration is required for this free program as are vehicle entry permits.

Editorial opinions

Pot-belly stove philosophy...

"I told my wife 'I bet you they'll call.'"

The voice belonged to Bill Grant, a teacher in the Wayne-Westland Community School District. He wrote in to offer his points of view and opinion about one of the columns he read in your favorite publication.

In an earlier edition a fictitious letterwriter who offered the name Len Grant also had written a 'Letter to the Editor' criticizing a school board.

Since there are many letters that come across our editorial desk we usually don't have time to check out all of these letters. If the person signs the letter, leaves a telephone number, and we feel he — or she — has something of interest to say, then the letter gets published.

But what about those letters which are signed, "Concerned Citizen"? Their names are withheld at their request to protect them from any repercussions. In our "Your Opinions" box today you'll find a letter criticizing us for using that policy. In fact, the other day we received several calls by persons who vehemently demanded to know the identity of the letterwriters.

We refused to disclose the names.

Why?

We believe the public has a right to express their views. If there are accusations made, we will have our reporters check them out. We will give the accused an opportunity to speak out even if it's a "no comment." Of course, if the letter is libelous — and we have lawyers who are qualified to tell us if the material contained in a letter is such — then the letter is tossed into the waste paper basket.

But what of the parent whose child is having problems in school and a parent-administration meeting doesn't solve the situation. Should she not be able to vent her feelings in the press? And should we not withhold the parent's name so that there will be no repercussions felt by the child?

What about the employees in business and government who wish to speak out on pertinent and impertinent matters — don't you think the Press has an obligation to protect their identity if they wish it so?

We could suggest that the letterwriter incorporate in the body or text of his letter why he wishes to remain anonymous. It would help solve some of the problems.

And we do require that all letters be signed so at least we can see a name, address and phone number for our purposes. Tell us a good reason for leaving off your name and we'll do so, but sign your name in confidentiality at least, please.

We admit that in our experience, a letter with a signed name does have a lot more impact than an unsigned one.

But this editor can recall a true story of a prison inmate who wrote a local newspaper and described the deplorable conditions in the prison. The editor foolishly printed the name.

The prisoner's life was hell after that incident.

Why not eliminate "Letters to the Editor" altogether so that we can get on to the work of objective reporting and journalism?

Well, we can't buy that argument at all.

The Greeks had their forums; and we had those old pot belly stoves at the General Stores where we oldtimers used to hang around and exchange thoughts and ideas about everything. And with people organizing into "special interest" groups to express their policies and ideologies, it doesn't leave the "common" and "average" guy a vehicle to air his — or her — opinion.

Except, of course, the good old "Letter to the Editor."

And that's what we think.

On judicious news reporting

BY JAN WYMAN
Van Buren Township

It has long been known that past Treasurer, Dorothy J. York, was going to resign due to ill health.

In fact, your paper printed last fall on the front page that York would resign in May of 1980.

Soon after, Trustee Tom Welty made it publically known that he was interested in the Treasurers' Office. His statements were seen in the Belleville Enterprise Roman and in the Ypsilanti Press. (Both widely read newspapers in the Van Buren Community.)

Because of the above facts, the Township Board should be complimented for not only its reaction, but for its preparation due to the vacancy left by York, officially made April 1, 1980.

Because York, herself, made it public knowledge via the news media and by word of mouth around town that she would retire by May 1, 1980, it appears to this writer that everyone has had enough time to show interest in the Treasurers' Office.

Your Editorial Opinion states that — "All appointments to local office should be Judicious." I agree! The appointment of Tom Welty to Treasurer IS A JUDICIOUS PLUS FOR THIS COMMUNITY! MR. WELTY WORKS AT THE JOB!

As for 'Snap Decision' — The State Law reads that an appointment to the Board must be made from one to thirty days.

Because Mrs. York left a month earlier than she originally stated publically, it caused that for one day (April 1st) no money transactions could be performed on that day as legally we had no Treasurer.

As to the audience portion of the meeting.

It was Supervisor Patricia Cullin who changed the format of having questions from the audience placed at the beginning of the meeting rather than at the end of the meeting so that citizens, after pondering the agenda, could ask the Chair if they could address the Board on the item of their interest when that item came up on the agenda.

In the past, the audience participation came at the end of the meeting whereby the time a citizen could voice an opinion on an item on the Agenda it was too late for it had already been voted upon.

When Cullin became Supervisor in 1976, she changed that audience portion to the beginning of the meeting. In fact, it is obvious to anyone who attends Township Board Meetings that Cullin has never refused any citizen to speak out at anytime to recognize a citizen before Township Meetings, during Township Meetings or after Township Meetings.

I would like to further add that this great country has fought many a war to preserve our Freedom of Speech and to sign our name after having given our opinion regardless of our religion, our politics and our economic status.

As for those Concerned Citizens who write Letters to the Editor and remain nameless because of their hesitation to speak out due to pressures and tensions of their jobs or fear of harassment on the job — all I can say is — Why do you make your life so tough?

I am a concerned, tax paying citizen who also happens to be a Township employee and I choose to sign my name.

If the newspaper prints my letter — come check me out for bruises and if there is any verbal harassment toward me, I'll share that with you too. The worst that can happen to me is a few anonymous phone calls. I've had those before.

The Other Side of the Meridian

A lie, love and life

By TOM MOORADIAN
Acting Managing Editor

Doris Moir is a liar.

But I don't think there is a mother in this world who would not have done what this Romulus mother of three did for her child.

Mrs. Moir and her husband, Sherman, who are legally residents of the state, placed their son, Curtis, who is deaf and blind, in the Boston School for the Blind Children. In order to get their son into the school, the Moirs had to come up with proof that they are residents of Massachusetts.

"Our child was abused here in Michigan," said Mrs. Moir, taking out colored poloroid photos of Curtis. The photos contained shots of a child who had blackened eyes, blood coming from the nostrils and what appeared to be deep gashes on the body apparently caused by teeth.

"In the two Michigan institutions where we had placed Curtis we discovered abuse, and we went as far as trying to hire an attorney to sue. However, the attorney told us we would have to come up with at least $6,000 before he would even look into the case," Mrs. Moir said. "Obviously we don't have that kind of money."

Mrs. Moir is employed as a secretary, while her husband is a painter, who is presently unemployed. The Moirs have two other children, Timothy, 16, who suffers from dyslexia, a learning disability, and Keith Edward, 14, whose two kidneys are on one side of the body.

Mrs. Moir had to quit her secretarial position recently to take care of her children, and also find a place that would care for Curtis.

Mrs. Moir's search for a suitable place for Curtis ended, she thought, in Boston. "I knew some people there and I explained the problems we were having here in Michigan. One of them suggested the Boston School for the Blind."

"I went there and talked to the officials," Mrs. Moir continued, "and they told me I had to be or become a resident of that state in order for them to help me. I got some papers that showed I had complied — but I lied."

"In the few months our child has been at that school he has improved tremendously," she added. "I don't think there is a mother in the world who would not have done what I have done."

But the Moirs' brief happiness is coming to an end. They were informed by school authorities in Boston that they would have to pick up Curtis or face charges of child abandonment.

"They learned that we didn't live in the state," Mrs. Moir said. "And, of course, they had to act accordingly. I can't blame them. But if you could see my child — how happy he is — I'm ready to sit the rest of my days in jail if I can insure him happiness."

"I have tried everything. There isn't a stone I haven't turned. And I will beg, if needed, to get help for my son."

Mrs. Moir displayed a dossier which included letters from the State of Michigan, Department of Social Services; The Senate, State of Michigan; Office of Governor, State of Michigan; Truman Medical Center; Department of Education (State of Michigan) and Congress of the United States, House of Representatives — each directing her to some department where she may or could get help.

But in that bureaucratic maze, the doors always opened to the institutions where Curtis had reportedly been abused. It is a door she doesn't want to enter again.

"I will not put Curtis through that hell again," she says.

And with the photographic images of that child on my mind, believe me, I don't blame her.

There'll be a lot of running, jumping, throwing and cheering on Saturday and next Friday when the Wayne County Special Olympics get underway in Canton.

Ronald McDonald and his friends will be there to help these special Olympians enjoy the thrill of athletic competition.

There will also be a host of local and county and state dignitaries who have devoted time and energies to make the Special Olympics, the largest international program of sports training and athletic competition for the mentally handicapped, one of the most successful ones of its kind.

And while the fans and athletes are enjoying the food and refreshments, compliments of McDonald's restaurants, we hope that they don't forget the real reason why they are there.

It takes a special kind of courage to cross those finish lines; it takes a special kind of a person to compete — a remarkable athlete — to be able to run, jump and throw after life indisputably has shortchanged them.

Most of us have handicaps; many of us refuse to admit it and cringe from the battles we have lost.

On Saturday and on May 2, those special Olympians will show us and prove there are no handicaps that the human mind cannot overcome.

Their battle to the finish line is a refreshing start for all of us to take part in, to commit ourselves to helping one another in building a better tomorrow. We salute the Special Olympians!

Here's what happens when you crash your new car...

By JOAN CLAYBROOK
Administrator
National Highway
Traffic Safety Administration

Historically, emotional appeal and fancy options have been the selling points when America shops for a new car. Advertising campaigns lure prospects to the showrooms with fancy visuals and with eloquent talk of leather seats, deep pile carpeting and power sun roofs.

Overwhelmed by the irresistible smell of a new car, a free AM-FM radio, a trim package thrown in by the dealer ("If you buy now!") and a modest trade-in on the old clunker, most people were easily convinced that they were getting the best deal in town.

But public attitudes and buying habits are beginning to change. New car buyers are not just kicking tires, they are watching their pennies closer and asking more questions. Recent surveys show that there is a growing demand for consumer information in the marketplace. Whether they are purchasing a waffle iron or a car, shoppers today are more conscious about the safety and performance of the products they buy, and their rights to remedies or warranty should problems arise.

A number of automotive and consumer magazines evaluate the frequency-of-repair records and the handling and comfort features of automobiles sold in this country. Some of them such as Consumer Reports are excellent references to check before shopping local dealers for the best price. But until recently, there has been no source of information to tell new car buyers how much protection a particular make or model will provide in an accident; most people simply take for granted the assumption that all big cars are safe and small ones are dangerous.

But all of that may change for the benefit of the consumer. Title II of the Motor Vehicle Information and Cost Savings Act requires the U.S. Department of Transportation to publish comparative ratings of new cars on how well they protect occupants in crashes, how badly they are likely to be damaged and how easily they can be repaired.

Last May, the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration began a testing program which may result in such a rating system. The safety agency is crash testing best-selling domestic and foreign cars at 35 mph to demonstrate to the public that all cars are not alike when it comes to safety performance.

The cars are crashed into fixed solid barriers and identical models are struck from the rear with a moving 4,000 pound barrier. Each carries two adult dummies (seat belted) in the front seats, instrumented to measure how successfully — or unsuccessfully — the cars perform. The goal of the program is to package the occupants — using the car's structure, padding and safety systems — as carefully as we package china for shipping.

A failing mark on the frontal test means that the occupants either would likely have been killed outright or sustained life threatening injuries. In the rear impact test, failure means there was fuel leakage which could result in a fire. The tests also measure how successfully the vehicles retain the windshield to keep occupants inside the car and whether the crash may result in intrusion of objects through the windshield into the passenger compartment.

The 35 mph test speed is 5 mph higher than currently required by law. The reason for the extra 5 mph is to determine which cars exceed the federal standard.

The first series of 20 test cars included domestic and foreign models. Some of the results were surprising. The Chevrolet Citation and Chevette, the Plymouth Horizon and the Ford Mustang — all small cars — passed the frontal test while the full-size Oldsmobile 98, Chrysler LeBaron, and Mercury Marquis did not. None of the imported cars tested, including the Volkswagen Rabbit, Toyota Celica and Datsun 210, passed the frontal test. The Rabbit also failed the rear impact test.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration's New Car Assessment Program will continue in the 1980s. It is an important step toward a federal automotive crashworthiness rating system, similar to the current fuel economy ratings which must be displayed on the window sticker of every new car.

Such a system would not only benefit the new car buyer, but could also encourage more competition among the automobile manufacturers to produce cars which are safer, more resistant to damage and less costly to service and repair.

As a goal for the automakers to match, NHTSA has developed a remarkable Research Safety Vehicle which uses existing technology to protect occupants in 50 mph crashes while combining good looks, excellent fuel economy and acceptable emission levels in a small car.

Copies of our crash test results and a brochure on the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration's safety car are available by writing to:

About first amendment

EDITOR: Freedom of speech and freedom of press are two of the most precious rights given to citizens of the United States. Each and every one of us has the right to speak out for our beliefs whether it is orally or in the form of a "letter to the editor".

I think it is wrong for a paper to print letters signed "concerned citizen." If people aren't made responsible for the statement they make, then you are handing out a terrible weapon. If someone firmly believes in something and they want to share that belief with others, then they should have the courage to own up to their statements and defend their beliefs.

Because when you don't sign your name you take away someone else's right to defend themselves. Papers are opening their doors for people to publicly slander and ruin the reputations of other respectable citizens without ever suffering the consequences that may occur to that citizen.

More on IWW column

EDITOR: Just finished reading Jim Bradley's column on the IWW's and IDALAP's. My very first reaction was to say, "God Bless You." My second reaction was to show your column to one of my co-workers and say, "Thank God for newspaper men like Jim Bradley." You are taking a stand that could be unpopular in your "neck of the woods" because it could hurt the feelings of some well-intentioned but misguided readers. But there is a time for righteous indignation, and now is the time. Even our Lord lost his "cool" when he drove the money-changers out of the temple.

It seems to me that the basic problem of our times is the selfish, "What's in it for me" attitude so prevalent in the whole spectrum of our society. It's not just labor, it's management, stock holders and the public as well. It's not just teachers, it's parents and students too. We blame our politicians, but what about the citizens who don't bother to find out what their elected representatives stand for, or don't even bother to vote. Almost everyone feels the taxes they are paying are too high, but who "demands" the Services and how many will turn down a free "hand-out." Unemployment and workman's compensation were instituted because there was a real need. Ask any businessman how badly these programs are now routinely being abused.

This country of ours can no longer afford these devious attitudes. Labor and management, teachers and school boards, politicians and citizens must work together for the common good. Business and industry exist to provide products and services that the customer is willing to pay for, not jobs. Schools were built to educate our children, to help prepare them for their place in the adult world, not to provide career opportunities for administrators and teachers. Governmental officials are elected to serve the people, not autocratically rule. Nowhere in the constitution does it say that the legitimate function of government is to play Robin Hood. And, since there aren't enough rich people, the burden now rests on the broad shoulders of the great middle class — the back-bone of America.

If management and labor don't start working together to solve our very real production and quality problems there will be no sales and no jobs. If teachers, administrators and school boards don't resolve their differences and get on with their main task of educating our children, the parents will refuse to renew millages. Seeing teachers on a picket line destroys my faith in Democracy. The next thing you know, our Pastors will go on strike if the Sunday collection doesn't meet their demands.

It is high time that we begin to honestly and sincerely try to understand each other's problems. Workers must recognize and appreciate that management is a necessary function and that productivity and quality are essential to the preservation of their jobs. Service people must really give quality service. Teachers must teach — if the child has not learned, the teacher has not taught. Teachers and administrators together, must establish and maintain discipline. Government must quit doing for people those things that they should be doing for themselves.

In short, we need a turn-around in our attitude and philosophy — not "What's in it for me" but what's best for each other, our community, our state and our country. We better do it soon or this will no longer be the land of opportunity, the home of the free and the brave.

Controversy in Sumpter

EDITOR: City Sand & Landfill has become the center of attention for our politicians. The suggesting of contemptuous principles that are not of sound judgment, will cost the taxpayers of Sumpter Township by trying to close City Sand & Landfill.

If these few politicians would only have the good of all the people in mind this would not be an issue. They are not telling us that the cost to the average homeowner will be approximately $60 per year on taxes. If Revenue Sharing is taken away, and the cost of rubbish pick up goes up every year, the cost will most likely be over $100 dollars per year. Plus, the free dumping permits that many Sumpter residents use to haul their extra rubbish will cost $6 or more and will have to be hauled out of the Township.

What will happen to the elderly and persons on fixed incomes? Can we afford the $60 to $100 a year more on our taxes?

Certain people attend every Township Board meeting who favor extreme changes only can think of one thing — "Close City Sand" — but next year they will be the first ones to come to the Board of Review complaining their taxes are too high.

Why doesn't someone ask what it will really cost the residents of Sumpter if City Sand were to be closed?

What monies will be lost to the General Fund, the kind services to the Churches and to the Township? How much of the taxpayers wasted money and time was spent by the present Board trying to close City Sand?

Keep in mind also, that some of the previous Board members that seem to be seeking office this year want to close City Sand for a few votes, but they were the ones that wanted City Sand in the first place and they are the ones who signed the Contract with City Sand.

People of Sumpter Township are being used, I feel, and anything will be promised for a vote!

Alcoholism and editorials

EDITOR: It was, with a great deal of concern, that I read your recent Guest Editorial regarding Alcoholism. It had within it, all the elements of the type of "folk wisdom" or "common sense" that cause communities to discard both the wheat and chaff at the same time. More specifically, the editorial contained just enough fact to make it appear creditable and at the same time obscure the complexities and misinformation.

Questions that might be asked of A TAXPAYER in response to the editorial include: 1) Are the practices within P.C.H.A.

Hospitals representative of the entire community?

2) Is it possible that Alcoholism represents such a complex system of problems, (perhaps involving physical health, mental health, and social functioning) that individuals presenting for treatment do not easily fit one neat category?

3) Is it possible that the number of people entering treatment for Alcoholism reflect the magnitude of the problem, (as to the best of my knowledge we have never provided treatment for an individual whose principal reason for entering treatment was to make us more financially solvent)?

4) Is it possible that withdrawal from alcohol is, as with strokes and heart attacks (many attributable to alcohol) a dangerous situation that can result in death?

5) Relative to the question of payment for services, one might ask A TAXPAYER if they are aware of the extreme measures adopted by Blue Cross-Blue Shield to insure cost effectiveness through both program administration and documented pre review justifying admissions.

It is most unfortunate for both the community and professionals within the community attempting to respond to a serious problem of startling magnitude, when local media allows itself to become a vehicle for such misguided "wisdom".

I agree wholeheartedly with A TAXPAYER, you've got the ball in your court, let's see what your paper can do about it!

On the brighter side

Here's Jim, our 'Question Man'!

You've heard of the Shell Answer Man. I'm sure. I'd like to be Associated Newspapers Question Man. I have hundreds of questions buzzing around in my head and I can't seem to find answers for them. Here are some of my questions:

When are people going to stop Sunday morning scheduling of community events, including Little League practice and games? Don't they know that it takes children and parents away from Sunday School or church school and morning worship? Do they care?

Why should children have to go to school on Saturdays to make up for teachers walking out on strike?

Why should families have to be separated on Saturdays because teachers chose to break the law and not teach the students?

And what about vacations that are disrupted or have to be cancelled because school classes run until July?

I wonder: Could students and parents file a Class Action Lawsuit against striking teachers for depriving students of their rightful education?

When is the State Legislature going to stop evading the school strike issue and pass meaningful, fair laws to deal with the situation? Wasn't State Rep. William Keith's proposed law a pretty good start in that direction three or four years ago? Why haven't legislators done anything to settle school strikes when they pass hundreds of laws each year?

Why do sportswriters and sportscasters act like they have all the answers to Detroit teams' problems?

Why does Al Ackerman insist that team owners shell out millions of dollars to sign players? Is he that free-spending with his own money?

Why are Detroit sports team owners so reluctant to spend money to build winning teams? Especially when they continue to turn a tidy profit each year?

Why do Detroit fans continue to support losers year after year? What causes people to make idols out of celebrities? Is it their dissatisfaction with their own lives?

Did you know that I wouldn't walk across the street to see a "celebrity" if I

Ask Carol Premo

Friend's strange diet is nauseating

DEAR CAROL,
I have a very good friend. I am very concerned about her physical and emotional well-being. She is absolutely compulsive about being thin. I mean way more concerned than I would consider normal. She goes so far that if she thinks she will gain weight she makes herself throw up. She does that a lot. She is very thin, wears a size 7 or 9 and still thinks she is fat. What is scary is that she really believes she is fat, it's not just the usual comments about losing weight and stuff. She forces herself to lose weight.

I read somewhere a while ago that there really is a mental illness like the way my friend is acting. She seems to be ok in other ways. But I'm very worried about her.

What do you think I should do? Should I just wait and see what happens or should I talk to her about getting help or at least seeing a doctor.

I don't want her to think that I think she is crazy because then she won't do anything about this problem.

I would like to know more about this problem, what I can do as a friend and what other behaviors have changed that I don't notice or realize. I really feel she needs help.

What Should I Do?

DEAR WHAT,

It does sound as if you are a concerned and good friend. You are, of course, probably correct that your friend has some emotional difficulty. The condition you describe sounds like anorexia nervosa, a morbid fear of gaining weight. This condition can become severe enough to do great physical damage and occasionally result in death.

Although I applaud your interest and concern I am not going to go into great detail on this illness. Suffice to say that whenever ones behavior goes into the area of excess that an emotional problem may be in play.

For example, eating too much, eating too little, too much sleep, too little sleep, too much work or too little and so on. You do not have to have expertise in these areas to help people or be supportive of them.

Rather than getting a little information about a very complex problem why not follow your first instincts and share your feelings of concern with your friend. You can suggest to her that she could benefit from therapy but then leave it up to her but only offer emotional support until she decides on her own to work on it.

DEAR CAROL,

I am absolutely beside myself, I was feeling sort of down and I confided some frustrations and angers to a friend. She blabbed to several others almost immediately. I am crushed. I feel alone, naked, vulnerable. How could she have done that to me? Why? How do I face all of them? How do I ever trust anyone? What do you suggest?

Betrayed

heard one was there? Do you know that the "celebrity" wouldn't even care that I didn't come?

When's the last time you really prayed to God? Was it to ask Him to get you out of a jam? Or was it just to say "Thank You"? Do you know how to pray?

Why does some self-serve gasoline cost more than gas pumped by an attendant?

Does the thought of having a massage parlor in your community "rub you the wrong way"?

Could two boxer's punches be called "a pair of athletic socks"?

Why do some liberal columnists knock Ronald Reagan for being a Grade B movie actor running for the Presidency? Haven't we had some pretty sorry "actors" sit in the White House already? Does the U.S. Constitution prohibit Grade B movie actors from becoming president?

Is "The Love Boat" the raunchiest program on television? Or is it "The Dating Game" and "The Newlywed Game"? Does every woman on "Love Boat" wear revealing bathing suits and dresses or does it just seem that way? Does every woman tumble into bed when the man asks, "Your room or mine"? They used to call "loose women" prostitutes; what do they call them now?

Why does emcee Bob Eubanks on "The Newlyweds" want to know where each couple was when they first "made whoopee"? Is it true that the people who make up the questions on "Newlyweds" do not have a brain in their heads?

Is it true that television is "going down the tubes"? Or should that question be "screened"? Is it true that the last time some Christians were on their knees was to change TV stations?

Is there such a thing as a female chauvinist pig?

Did you ever play 20 questions?

If a baseball ump was clumsy and kept tripping over his feet, could it be referred to as "The fall of the roamin' umpire"?

Did you know that these are just some of the questions that I have? But can I ask just one more?

Can you put me in touch with the Shell Answer Man?

By CAROL PREMO, C.S.W.

DEAR BETRAYED,

How sad that someone you trusted hurt you. What can be counted among one of life's more painful experiences. Why do people do this? There are a multitude of reasons but one of the most common is a sense of insecurity on the part of the blabbermouth. And a feeling that if they have something to say it makes them important. It doesn't, of course, it simply makes them an untrustworthy blabbermouth but some people can't see reality too well.

What I suggest is that you gently tell this individual that you are hurt by her break in trust. Don't threaten her or make her into an enemy but be careful of what you share until you see concrete evidence of change in her. Don't worry about others as your more mature and sharper friends won't pay any attention to unsubstantiated gossip.

And in the future be careful who you confide in. Trust is something that develops slowly.

Reflections

Teachers and kids

By JOYCE HAGELTHORN

My grandson had another run in with his teacher. It is obvious his teacher is in despair and it is obvious she hasn't the least idea of what kids like little tow-haired Mike is made of. I am not condemning the teacher. In fact I feel rather sorry for her, but not as sorry as I feel for Mike. Would that he could go back with me to the fourth grade class and my fourth grade teacher who understood little kids who were different.

I can remember Miss Gladby vividly. Her sandy colored hair was drawn back in a prim little knot at the nape of her neck, especially in the morning. By mid-afternoon, tiny curls would have crept out along her forehead and wispy tendrils touched her collar.

I was nine years old and just being introduced to geography which I passionately loved, mostly because of Miss Gladby. I wanted to be the smartest kid in her class. I wanted her to give me her special smile and tell me how great I was. It was probably because of this desire, that, that which happened did happen, and thus a goal was set for me which I have followed ever since.

It was during the time when my father had taken us to the tiny little town in northern Idaho, to settle my grandfather's estate.

He felt it was paradise, and he settled his family in the only available house in that mountain town ... a house bending inwards with age and haunting memories.

The house gave us days of exciting exploration and one rainy spring afternoon, my sister and I made a tremendous discovery. In an old trunk we found a cotton ball, straight from some sunny, southern field of cotton. My father explained to us what it was, and how the cotton was picked, finally ending up as the cotton clothes we were wearing. He told us of the deep South and the history of that long ago era before the Civil War.

I was filled with excitement! Carefully I placed the cotton in a large paper bag, and the next day in geography class I pulled it out and showed it to my teacher.

"Oh, Joyce," she smiled. "Wherever did you get this?"

Well! My head swelled with importance. My heart filled with joy. Miss Gladby was noticing me! And she was asking me to be important to this class of youngsters with whom I had barely become acquainted.

My breath came fast. A hot flush swept over my face.

"My father brought it back on one of his trips to the South," I said importantly. "Oh?" she answered.

I launched into a beautiful story of the old South with its plantations and its cotton fields, and its one-time slavery. I discoursed on the freeing of the slaves, the Southern Belle's, the romance of the old South, all of the things I had learned the day before from my story-telling father. And I took it a step further. I made my father a hero.

"And your father brought this back?" she asked again as I came to a breathless, but triumphant halt.

"That's right," I beamed, and not a quiver of guilt went through me for the lie I was telling. I was too wrapped up in my story, in the "feeling" of being one of those Southern Belles of that romantic era; of being a part of that dried up cotton ball she held in her hand.

"We enjoyed your story," she said to me and smiled that extra special smile of hers. The tiny curls danced on her forehead, and the wispy tendrils curled around the back of her collar. I was in heaven.

Later that day she went into the third grade class where my little sister was a student. She carried with her the cotton ball. She took some time and showed it to the class, and then she turned to my little sister.

"Claire," she asked. "In what state of the south did your father get this cotton?"

"Oh, he didn't get it in the south," my little sister replied. "We found it in the attic."

Miss Gladby came back into the fourth grade room. She stood and looked at me thoughtfully, and then she placed the cotton ball on my desk.

"Would you please remain after school?" she asked. My heart pounded. Would I remain after school with the most wonderful teacher in the whole world? I had no inkling of my little sister's betrayal.

The bell rang, and I walked to the teacher's desk. She was probably going to ask me about the deep south, or maybe she wanted me to write my story for her to keep forever. Already I was composing the story.

As I touched her chair, she reached out and put her arm around me and gently told me she knew we had found that cottonball in the attic. And then, so carefully, so understandingly, she told me she knew why I had said what I had said, and why I had told the story, and she explained to me how to differentiate between what I was seeing in my mind's eye and what was the factual truth.

"When you feel tempted to tell a story like you told today," she said. "Sit down and write it, instead. Put all of those feelings, and those images you are seeing, down on paper. Use that beautiful imagination, and be a writer!"

And then she kissed me on the top of my head. Oh glory! I ran all the way home, my head in the clouds, dreaming of the time when I would be the world's greatest writer, all because of Miss Gladby and that cotton ball we found in the attic.

Second best in state

Westland John Glenn's powerlifters proved they are again among the best in the state as they returned from Hastings with the second place trophy. The Westlanders also produced two state champs in 114-pounder Chuck Thornton and Steve Allgeyer. The team's line-up included: Thornton (first row, from left) Allgeyer, and Dino Tomei; second row are Doug Brown, Rich Czajka and Loren Smith; third row are Bill Dye, Steve Miller and Fred Schimansky and in the last row is Coach Jerry Szukaitis. After winning the state three years ago, the Rockets have finished runner-up the past two years.

Area coaches may be thanking the heavens for the summer-like weather that invaded the county last week, enabling them to launch the 1980 baseball season, but there were a lot of moans and groans after the first game results were in.

Cherry Hill committed five errors and was held to three hits as Coach Ken Mientkiewicz' Spartans bowed to out-of-league rival, Garden City East, 8-1, in its baseball debut last week.

"It was the first time we were out on a baseball field this year," Coach Mientkiewicz said, "and it looked like it. We did things that I can only attribute to our lack of outdoor practice. Things like misjudging fly balls.

"However, I must say we hit the ball very hard, but they were right at people."

Dave O'Koney started for the Spartans, worked five innings, gave up seven runs, struck out five and walked one. He also was the victim of several misjudged flies. Mark Cabanaw pitched the final two frames for the losers.

East scored one run in the second, picked up two more in the bottom of the fifth, then erupted for five in the sixth. Cherry Hill ruined winning pitcher Tom Bonner's bid for a shutout. Bonner walked Bill James, Bill Walter and then gave up a run-scoring single to Garry Williams in the sixth.

The Spartans will take on Melvindale, the defending Tri-River Conference champs, on Friday after visiting Crestwood (on Tuesday) and hosting Schafer on Wednesday.

In the meantime, Wayne Memorial split with natural rival, Westland John Glenn, in the Zebras' opener at Glenn on Saturday. Coach Jim Chronowski's ball club dropped the first game 2-1, but came back behind Dan Perusse's six-hit pitching to beat the Westlanders 7-1 in the nightcap.

"It was only the second day with cleats on," Coach Chronowski noted, "and, from my observations there were some encouraging things. The pitching was impressive — it wasn't a walkathon — but infield communications have to be improved.

"In that first game we committed three crucial errors," Chronowski added.

Perusse, a righthanded senior, twirled the first four innings of the second game, allowed two hits and one run. He notched eight strikeouts and walked three, before giving way to reliever Rick Rogers who finished up.

Perusse also helped his own cause with a 340-foot, two-run homer that cleared the left field fence at Glenn in the third inning.

The Westlanders came up with single runs in the bottom of the third and fourth inning while winning pitcher Jeff Bronson held the Zebras to two scattered hits en route to a 2-1 victory in the opener. Bronson whiffed eight and walked five.

Bill Fox was charged with the loss. He tossed the final three innings after taking over from starter Larry Reid who was relieved after giving up a run and leaving a runner on base.

Wayne got a run in the first inning after loading the bases thanks to Joe Guyetta's infield single, an error, and Larry Reid's walk, after Perusse had flied out and Rogers had fanned. Gene Piscopink also drew a base on balls, forcing in the Zebras' only run of the game.

Chronowski and his club have a busy schedule this week as the Zebras travel to Plymouth Canton for a doubleheader. They will make up a rainout with Taylor Truman Friday.

Belleville presented first year head coach Tom Fielder with an opening day victory over Suburban 7 Conference rival, Allen Park. Mike Vance fired a five hitter as the Tigers edged the Parkers 4-3. Vance fanned eight, walked one.

The Belleville pitcher began the sixth inning with a leadoff single, moved to second when loser Brian Pettele walked Scott Forster, then Belleville, the defending Suburban 7 Conference girls' softball champs, picked up where they left off last year with two easy victories.

Betsy Nota held Allen Park to two hits as the champs buried the Jaguars 16-2 in their first defense of the title last week. Nota notched 12 strikeouts and walked four. She also helped her own cause with three runs batted in.

Laura Houle, an all-conference selection a year ago, belted three hits while Vickie Forest collected two. Linda Spine also finished the game with three runs batted in. Nota chalked up her second win of the campaign at the expense of league rival, Livonia Bentley, 8-6. She struck out 10 and walked four. She remained hot at the plate as she sliced three hits.

Houle chipped in with a pair of singles and teammates Nancy Wisniewski and Kim Beckley each had two RBIs.

Soccer: A lot of footwork

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Sports Editor

Soccer is a sport that usually most newspapers only give lip service to.

That, of course, is unfortunate.

It is a sport that can combine breathtaking action with beauty, and it is probably one of, if not the most popular sport in the world today.

"Soccer lets everyone who plays get involved," said Mark J. Rairick, who is director of parks and recreation in Van Buren Township. "The size or strength of the player doesn't matter."

"When we had registrations a few weeks back we were forced to close it quickly because of the hordes of kids who wanted to play — that's how popular the sport has become in this area."

Rairick noted that the influx of European and South American players have stirred up interest in the sport. "One of our coaches is Eddie Trudo who comes to us from France. He's volunteered his services to help teach and train the kids," Rairick said.

Van Buren presently has 100 youngsters involved in its spring program. The players have been divided into teams which compete in the Great Lakes Soccer League. That league is made up of groups from Wayne County from places like Chelsea and Ann Arbor.

The kickers, ages 8 to 15, practice after school and play matches on weekends. All of the teams are coached by volunteers.

"We really don't have the staff or the help to do this by ourselves, so we're really thankful for men like Trudo and Al Harris who have devoted their time to coach these kids."

Rairick, 26, a native of New Baltimore, is very conscious of the need for adult coaches. "Having competed in baseball, wrestling and football," he pointed out, "I know that a program, a team, an athlete lives or dies on the success of the man who guides it."

Rairick said that the program has not encountered any problems, "with the exception probably that we have not been able to accommodate all the kids who want to play."

And maybe getting some coverage of the sport.

Looking as if he was ready to slip into his high school or college baseball uniform, the dapper Mike Gouin is ready for another challenge. The 36-year-old potentate of the slo-pitch softball world was named this week as manager of the newly-formed Detroit Auto Kings. He will also be a player for the pro-softball team.

The former Detroit Little Caesars standout said, "I'm really eager for this new challenge."

Gouin is well known in this area, the state and nationally. A graduate of Wayne Memorial High School and Eastern Michigan University, Gouin has been the Superintendent of Parks and Recreation in Canton Township for the past two years.

During his career with Little Caesars, he was voted the World's MVP in slo-pitch, and he racked up an impressive score of accolades en route to national championships.

Before he became a member of the "old elite" of the softball world, Gouin was a member of the Detroit Metro Youth Fitness Committee from 1972-77 and vice-president of the Michigan Parks and Recreation Association. He is also a former member of the Wayne Jaycees and Wayne Civitans and is presently District Commissioner for the American Softball Association (ASA). Mike captained the varsity basketball and baseball teams in his senior year of high school.

And, if the historians are correct when they say that the past influences the present and future, then the Detroit Auto Kings definitely have a winner in their driver's seat.

Top track times coming up

With the high school track season well underway, it's time to compile the top area performances.

The Associated Newspapers will publish weekly the top boys and girls' track & field performances again this season. Wayne Memorial coaches Floyd Carter and Ernie Righetti have consented to compile the listings.

Coach Carter will be in charge of putting together the weekly girls' track listing, while Righetti will be responsible for the boys' list.

Coaches in the ANP circulation area are urged to contact Coach Carter at the high school (595-2237) or at his home after 6 p.m. (728-5469). Coach Righetti also may be contacted at the high school, or telephone his home at 729-6564.

Liedel earns letter

Chris Liedel of Belleville has earned his second varsity swimming letter from Bowling Green State University. A sophomore freestyler, he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Liedel.

Bowling Green compiled its best dual meet record in 16 years during the 1979-80 season, 9-4. In addition, the Falcons broke 13 of 19 school records. Eleven of those records fell during the Mid-American Conference Championships in which Bowling Green finished fifth.

The versatile Liedel swam every freestyle event sometime during the season, and also participated in the individual medley. He compiled a number of top 10 finishes in the freestyle events, primarily in the 50-, 100- and 200-yard events.

At Belleville High School, Liedel helped the team compile a 46-8 record in his three years of competition. He was part of the school's record-setting 400-yard freestyle relay team.

Van Buren to hold tryouts

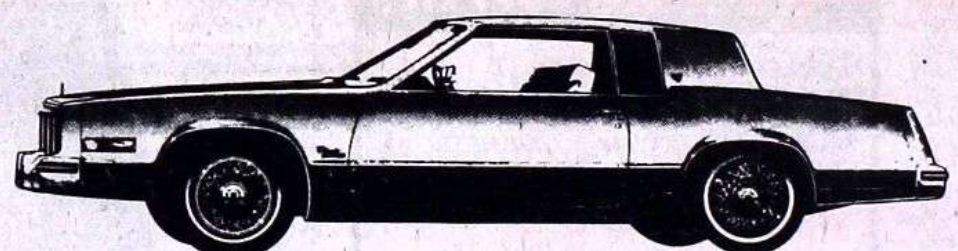

Ball players who wish to compete in the Van Buren Senior Leagues this summer are requested to take part in tryouts to be held Thursday and Friday at fields behind Belleville High School.

Those eligible to compete in the leagues must be between the ages of 13 and 15. Further information may be obtained by telephoning Rick Edwards at 699-7682.

Wayne remains perfect in track

With all-stater Doug Tolson resting on the sidelines, Wayne Memorial's track machine powered past Riverview 123-18 for their third consecutive win of the campaign.

Coach Ernie Righetti's thinclads claimed 15 of the 16 events without Tolson, one of the premier distance runners in the state who didn't compete. In Tolson's place, Righetti turned loose a sophomore, Chris Strome, who responded with victories in the mile and two mile events.

Strome was clocked in 4:46 for his winning performance in the mile. He came back for a 10:28 in chalking up the two-mile run.

Wayne's junior sprinter, Vern Bufford, continued to look impressive as he won the 100-yard dash and aided the Zebras in their sweep of all three relay events.

"We head for Bedford on Saturday," Coach Righetti said, "and I feel we have a good chance of winning it there. The kids are working hard."

Wayne has two league trials this week. The Zebras took on Taylor Truman Tuesday and will meet Taylor Center on Thursday.

North rips Franklin, Glenn next?

With their sights set on Westland John Glenn's track throne, pre-season Northwest Suburban title favorite, North Farmington, destroyed Livonia Franklin 98-38 last Thursday and will clash with Coach Barry Basel's Rockets at Glenn on Thursday.

"They definitely have the team to beat," said Coach Basel whose Rockets took 13 of 16 events in an 88-54 triumph over Thurston for their league opener last week. "Just look what North did to Franklin," offered Basel.

Franklin managed three first places, two of those by hurdler Mike Gabel who won the highs in 16.5 and the lows in 42.1. The Livonians also picked up the pole vault against North thanks to Grant Gordon's 12'6" leap.

"We don't have the depth," said Franklin's Bob Holmes. "And that could be a problem for us all season."

Franklin also took part in the Elks Relays over the weekend and struck gold with its distance medley team made up of Randy Rusceak, Paul Snider, Jeff Bristow and Paul Coburn.

Livonia Stevenson captured top team honors in a field of 12 area clubs, while Westland John Glenn was fourth. The Westlanders fielded the top discus trio with Bill Dye, Gary Black and Dale Boone who set a relay and school record with a combined effort of 146 feet, 7 inches.

Westland also had three second places: the four-mile relay made up of Tom Andrews, Carl Steffens, Pete Stephens and Cory Gielinski was runner-up to Detroit Catholic Central who posted the winning time of 18:45, while the Glenn shot put relay of Dye, Black and Boone amassed 141'1 1/2" for 138'3 1/2" for their silver medal.

Glenn's vaulters — Joe Stailey, Joe Blackwood and Mike Ezurdot finished second to Dearborn. The Pioneers piled up 38 feet for their three efforts, while the Westlanders had 35.

The team relays from Saturday's Elks' Relays are as follows: Livonia Stevenson (43), Detroit Cooley (36), Dearborn (35), Westland John Glenn (26), Troy (25), Bishop Borgess (23), Detroit Catholic Central (17), Cherry Hill (12), Livonia Franklin (11), Garden City and Hazel Park (3). Taylor Truman was a no show.

DAVE VISSER

He'll team up with Salem's Monk

Canton's Visser signs with Wayne State

Dave Visser, a 6-5, 180 lb. guard forward from Plymouth Canton High School, today signed a national letter of intent to play basketball for Wayne State this fall. Visser is the second Plymouth regular to sign with the Tartars. Howard Monk of Salem fame signed last week.

A two-year starter for Coach Craig Bell, Visser captained his team which advanced to the regionals after winning the district title. He was named All-Area, All-League

First Team, Second Team All-Metro and H.M. All State (Detroit News and Free Press).

Visser averaged 13.6 points and 8.5 rebounds per game. The highlight of his senior year was a 20 point first half against Waterford Mott for the league championship. For his contributions he was named the team MVP.

WSU's new recruit also played golf for Canton, captaining the team for four years and capturing All-League and All-area honors. He is also a member of the National Honor Society.

Visser cited the WSU campus atmosphere and the up and coming basketball program as his reasons for deciding on WSU. "I liked the atmosphere of the Wayne State campus and I'm looking forward to joining the basketball program which is really starting to build. Vern Payne is a great coach and I know he can build a winner."

Wayne State head coach Vern Payne was pleased with Dave's decision.

"Dave is a talented big man. At 6-6 he has the ability to step away from the basket and hit the perimeter jump shot," said Payne. "His father (Bob Visser, former coach at Livonia Franklin), coached U of D's Kevin Kaseta. Dave plays like a coach's son."

Belleville thinclads topple Dearborn

Tigers stop defending champs in league opener

Dearborn High head track coach Bob Bridges has monopolized the Suburban 8 Conference championships for years. In fact, no one quite remembers when the veteran coach has lost the title.

But, this could be the year for the Pioneer's demise. Dearborn bowed to Belleville and Coach Dave Medley in the opening conference dual meet of the season for the two schools, 74-58.

"This is the first time we have ever beaten them in track," said Coach Medley. "However, it's a long way from the opening meet to the league championship, and Bob (Dearborn High's coach) told me he felt his team would be ready by then."

Belleville took nine of the 16 events and two of the three relays. The Tigers' 880-yard relay team also finished first but was disqualified.

Earlier in the week Belleville breezed past Monroe Catholic Central 94-34 as it swept 13 events in the season opener. Coach Medley's runners will host 11 teams this week for the annual Belleville Relays. Those relays will get underway at 10 a.m. at Belleville High.

"We've invited teams we seldom see in the area," said Medley. "It will give us a good opportunity to test our strength against them."

Among those who have accepted the invitation to compete are Highland Park, Lincoln Park, Cherry Hill, Dearborn Heights Crestwood, Woodhaven, Southgate, Plymouth Canton and Salem, Ypsilanti Willow Run and Ypsi Lincoln. There is a $1 admission charge.

Meet results: Belleville 74, Dearborn 58

ALLEN PARK 383-9527

Preps begin action

Dave Stamper was safe on an error, loading the bases. Greg Brinkerhoff's sacrifice fly drove in one run. Dave Daniels hit a dribbler down the third base line, scoring the second run of that inning, and the throw to first was wild, allowing what proved to be the winning run to score.

Allen Park scored in the first inning, but Belleville tied it up in its second. Two runs in the top of the fifth gave the Jaguars a 3-1 lead.

In their next outing, Belleville got a good look at Livonia Bentley and learned why the Bulldogs are considered a serious threat to Plymouth Salem's conference crown. The Livonians jumped on losing pitcher Stamper for four runs in the first inning and went on to hand Fielder and the Tigers their first loss of the season, 12-1.

Stamper worked six innings, gave up six runs and six hits. He also swatted a pair of singles. Daniels also chipped in two of the eight hits off of winner Tom Gorski.

On Saturday Belleville split with arch-rival, Ypsilanti. The Braves won the opener, a nine inning affair, 3-2. The Tigers came back and won the second game 7-1 as righthander Bill White tossed a three hitter.

The split gave Belleville a 2-2 overall record as the week began. They will Edsel Ford on Friday in Dearborn, travel to Livonia on Saturday for a doubleheader with Franklin.

"I'm pleased with this team so far," said Coach Fielder. "We have been in all of the games with the exception of the one with Bentley. I see a lot of good things out there."

Wayne girls run like track champs

Wayne Memorial, the defending Great Lakes 8 Conference girls' track and field champs, served notice it will again belong to the power structure in that league with out-of-league victories over Westland John Glenn, Garden City West, and Riverview.

Coach Floyd Carter's runners outdistanced Glenn and West in a triangular meet to open the season, then buried Riverview 115-8 to launch its defense of the conference title.

Laura Weyand picked up a pair of Wayne wins in the mile and two-mile, while teammate Pam Matyasack captured the long jump and high jump events in the triangular. Glenn received a double winning performance from Kelly

Graham who took both the high and low hurdles.

Wayne amassed 76 points as compared to Glenn's 68 and West's 13.

Sweeping all 15 events, Wayne crushed Riverview in their first and what will be their last confrontation against the Pirates. Riverview is scheduled to leave the league for the Huron Conference in the fall.

Miss Weyand was clocked in an impressive 12:24 in winning the two-mile, while Matyasack leaped 16 feet, 1 inch in the long jump and Mona Duplessus won the discus with a toss of 90 feet, 8 inches.

Wayne returns to the conference wars on Thursday at home to Taylor Center.

Ex-Glenn gridders at GV spring camp

Steve Borgelt, Bill Lee and Paul Svabik — all former Westland John Glenn grid standouts — and John Whinham from Garden City are among 90 candidates who reported for spring football practice at Grand Valley State.

The month-long spring drills will conclude May 3, with the annual Blue and White intra-squad game.

Grand Valley, which won the Great Lakes Conference title in 1977 and 1978, is setting its sights on regaining the conference title this season and hopes to gain a berth in the post-season playoffs.

The Lakers led the NAIA in passing offense last season, completing 159 of 281 for 10 touchdowns and 2,432 yards for a 270.2 average.

Coach Jim Harkema's club will open their season Sept. 6 at Hope College in Holland.

Grand Valley counts on Shoemaker

Fred Shoemaker, former All-Area grider and track star from Westland John Glenn and a Wayne resident, is a member of Grand Valley's State's track team.

Shoemaker will compete in the sprints and relays for coach Bill Clinger.

The Lakers are members of the Great Lakes Conference and will compete in the NAIA Districts May 23 and the GLIAC Championships which are slated for May 9-10 in Saginaw.

POWER KING

Big acreage...heavy loads...rough going — Power King carries through without missing a beat. The reason? 12, 14, 16 and 18 hp engines applied through Power King's all-gear drive deliver almost 100% power to the big drive wheels. That's why you move right along with a 60" mower, load fast with a 1/2 ton bucket, bulldoze, clear a 48" path of snow in a hurry.

If enough participants come forward, the Romulus Parks and Recreation Department plans to organize golf leagues for women — juniors and seniors — this summer.

"We have received very good response for the Thursday night golf league," said Dennis Davidson, Romulus Recreation Director, "however, we will have openings. These leagues will play weekdays, either late morning or early afternoons at Shady Hollow.

League play is scheduled to get underway on May 8. Golf lessons will also be offered this summer at the Par Golf Range, Ecorse Road west of Merriman Road. Lessons will be given by a golf professional and dates and times will be announced at a future date.

"We still have an opening left for the Men's Sunday morning softball league," Davidson pointed out. "If you have a team, please contact the rec. offices as soon as possible."

The league is designed for players ages 18 and older.

This is their week

Thanks to our volunteers

By SUE McDONALD
ANP News Editor

Behind every good program, there's sure to be a dependable cadre of volunteers. And for those Americans who say "sure, I'll help", this week is for them.

April 20 through 26, Americans will be tipping their hats, so to speak, recognizing the willingness of their countrymen to help their fellow man and honoring their dependability and their untiring assistance.

This week is National Volunteer Week. With a constantly growing demand for human services in the United States, a demand that far exceeds the money available for those services, it is only right we say thank you to those volunteers that help this country meet those demands.

Statistics show that some 27 percent of all Americans do volunteer work. While many people think of such work as being organized — through the Red Cross, at hospitals and similar programs — volunteers actually are those people who help out at church, give a neighbor a hand in moving, or fix the brakes on a child's bicycle.

Current estimates are that volunteers are in the 18-36 age group, with 65 percent of those people employed. Further, 29 percent of American women and 24 percent of the American men lend a hand. In fact, it is estimated that volunteer work will contribute $30 billion to the U.S. economy this year alone.

Volunteers are in action 52 weeks a year, not just during Volunteer Week. Many of our major institutions — hospitals, courts, museums, schools, Boy and Girl Scouts, the Red Cross — are largely dependent on volunteer efforts. And many less recognized groups similarly are dependent on volunteers who help make the community cleaner, safer and a more healthy place to live.

So during National Volunteer Week, do a good turn for someone you know who does volunteer work. Say thank you, then join the cadre of volunteers that make the United States what it is.

And if you're interested in doing volunteer work through the Wayne County Department of Social Services, which coordinates volunteer efforts in a wide variety of programs, contact Ellen Devine, 1200 Sixth St., Michigan State Plaza, Detroit 48201, or call 256-1597.

Go Chinese with Wheat Germ Dim Sum

You'll think you're in a Chinese tea room when you sample these savory wheat germ snacks or dim sum. Translated as heart's delight, dim sum usually consists of tasty fillings or morsels wrapped in paper thin pastry or won ton skins. Although the Chinese traditionally serve dim sum with tea for a midday meal, this delicious version from the Kretschmer Consumer Kitchen makes a satisfying party snack or appetizer course at dinner time.

For the flavorful filling given here, vacuum packed wheat germ is combined with cabbage, pork sausage and water chestnuts. Seasonings of soy and ginger enhance the healthful mixture. Interesting texture as well as taste makes this filling outstanding. Follow the easy directions for shaping won ton skins around it. The results are pretty, two bite ruffled pouches. You'll discover your skill in shaping them speeds up after you've done a few. Ready to use won ton skins come in pound packages. They are found in produce or freezer sections of markets and specialty food stores.

This particular kind of Cantonese snack is an open faced dumpling known as "sumi", "sui mai" or "shao mai". There are two quick ways to cook them. Either deep fry until lightly browned and crispy or steam. The fried version is a wonderful appetizer to eat out of hand. Steam them on a rack over boiling water for the pasta course of a Chinese menu. Whichever cooking method is used, wheat germ dim sum are genuinely delicious. Serve hot with Chinese mustard and catsup for dipping.

Nutritious regular wheat germ and wheat germ with sugar & honey are highly praised cooking ingredients used daily by good cooks everywhere.

Wheat Germ Dim Sum

1½ cups chopped cabbage
¾ cup vacuum packed wheat germ, regular ½ pound bulk pork sausage
one-third cup chopped water chestnuts
1 tablespoon soy sauce
1½ teaspoons grated ginger root
¼ teaspoon liquid red pepper seasoning
24 round won ton skins
Cooking oil

Combine cabbage, wheat germ, sausage, water chestnuts, soy sauce, ginger root and pepper seasoning. Mix well. Divide mixture among won ton skins, placing in center of each. Bring edges up and around filling, leaving top exposed. Press in dough to give ruffled pouch look to dim sum. Heat 1½ to 2 inches oil in saucepan or deep fat fryer to 350 degrees. Add filled won tons, a few at a time. Cook until lightly browned. Remove with slotted spoon and drain on paper towel. Accompany with Chinese hot mustard and catsup for dipping, if desired. Makes about 2 dozen.

STEAMED VARIATION: Place filled won ton skins on steamer rack over boiling water. Cover and cook 4 to 5 minutes or until cooked through. Or square skins cut into rounds.

potpourri

BY LEE SMITH
Suburban Living Editor

Last week's intro to "potpourri" left much to be desired, I must confess. But yours truly had put in a hard eight days on the fairways (and I DO mean it was work — hacking away shamefully while my sister-in-law was just burning up the golf course and putting me to shame.)

Besides that, the finale of a long drive home (and it had been some 10 hours) is no time to tackle a column. So, folks, I just wasn't doing my best think-job a week ago.

I did want to tell you all (y'all, that is) about beautiful Callaway Gardens which we chose for our annual Easter golf get-away. Because it's not only a golfer's paradise, but a place of beauty and relaxation for young and old alike, the 2,500 acre complex is an ideal site for vacations. The azalias were in full bloom and absolutely breathtaking in their pinks, whites and vermillions. Coupled with delicately airy dogwoods, they caused us to gape and gasp in awe (when we should have been keeping our heads down and concentrating on our next shots.)

Having seen C.G. in all its autumnal splendor on a previous trip, BG and I didn't think THAT color spectacle could be equalled. We were delighted to have our doubts allayed — spring is definitely on a par with fall!

It is a lovely place, a southern Shangri-la . . .

While on the subject of our wanderings, a second segment of this weekly epistle must go to a couple Belleville transplants, Tom and Betty Hopka who're now calling Knoxville, Tennessee "home".

Hosts to 10 of us for an overnight and morning of golfing at their club, they showed us what "Yankees" have contributed to the southern hospitality bit. We were wined and dined regally . . . the "Hopka Hilton" earning a 4-star rating as we said our so-longs and proceeded onto our Georgia destination.

And — having spent an afternoon recently with still another ex-Bellevillite (or, if you prefer, Bellevillian?), I have another acknowledgement to make. Celia Rossi, who dropped me a note to join her for lunch in Adrian, provided me with a delightful meal, a tour of the city and an insight to achieving.

Ceil and her husband, Herm, are not only remodeling their restaurant in Adrian but have taken on the tremendous task of renovating an old city mansion (yes, complete with white pillars!) Along with her tile painting and a bevy of other crafts, Ceil's energy and creativeness left me feeling a pretty lethargic, unproductive counterpart.

While on the subject of the Rossi's — old acquaintances would have a hard time recognizing Herm. Sporting a smart beard and a new svelte physique, he has to be some 60 to 70 pounds trimmer than when he lived on Savage Road.

And since we're on this somewhat personalized vein, we'd like to let their many friends know that Dick and Shirley Wood are no longer returning to their place on Jeanette Street after a hard day's work. The twosome have a brand new address and home to match on Stoney Creek Road, just a few miles outside Milan.

That makes them "almost-neighbors" of ours and we'd like to be among the first to put things in print and wish them many hours of contentment in their new surroundings.

Also not to be omitted in this week's "tributes" is a teacher at Savage School, one Mary Anne Hudge, who, after years of perseverance and hard work, was awarded her master's degree in ceremonies Saturday at Eastern Michigan University. Applause, applause!

Another order of business this week (lest I forget in my meanderings) is to welcome Mrs. Katherine Spring back to Belleville after an absence of some three months.

Our "In the Community" reporter (or "stringer" as she's called in the profession) got away to the West Coast, to Oregon, at the invitation of her son and family who live there. Mt. St. Helen added to the excitement of the visit by putting on her little show just before her return to the mid-west.

We missed her weekly contribution to these pages, our Thursday chats when she called at 2 p.m. to say the column was "ready", and too, that much-needed exercise when I trekked the two blocks to her place for the "pick-up".

Glad to have you back, Mrs. S.

LOOKING BACK AT THIS DAY IN HISTORY — April 23 . . .

IN 1789: President-elect and Mrs. George Washington were "on the move" — setting up housekeeping in the first "presidential mansion" at the corner of Franklin and Cherry Streets in New York City.

IN 1843: Followers of the "prophet" William Miller gathered throughout the U.S. After much fanfare to await his prediction that the world would come to an end on this day.

And today — some 137 years later — I guess we can agree that "nothing happened."

IN 1901: New York became the first state in the nation to require auto owners to equip vehicles with license plates. Exactly 954 autos were registered. Each plate was inscribed with the owner's initials. (And I bet at no additional cost either.)

IN 1949: Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson of Illinois vetoed a bill that would require all cats in that state to be held on a leash.

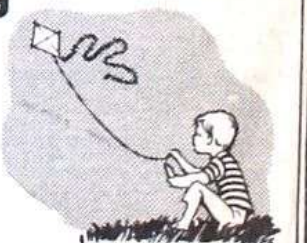

IN 1953: Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon concluded the longest Senate speech to date, arguing 22 hours and 26 minutes against the Republican-sponsored bill granting offshore oil lands to certain coastal states.

IN 1969: Sirhan Sirhan was sentenced to die in the gas chamber for the murder of Sen. Robert Kennedy.

TIDBITS FROM TV'S "HOLLYWOOD SQUARES" — Bet all you macho men won't believe this but — according to a study made of those in the profession, more men than women pass out in dentist's chairs. . . . The most boring man on TV (from a poll conducted of television viewers) is Howard Cosell. And I'll buy that! (And cast an additional vote to boot). . . . Of looks, sense of humor and emotional stability, the most important of the three when choosing a mate was found to be the latter — emotional stability! . . . Japan has the highest percentage of single men of any country in the world. (Watch out Northwest Orient Airlines for an influx of female passengers!) . . . Most children quizzed said that the monkey (surprisingly) was their favorite animal. The dog DID come in second.

THE BOTTOM LINE: Middle age is the time in life when you stop criticizing the older generation and start criticizing the younger.

Two Belleville women part of team at new Saks store

You may feel lost in the spaciousness of a 92,000-square foot store, but there are two friendly faces, neighbors so to speak, to introduce you to the new Saks Fifth Avenue Store at the Fairlane Towne Center in Dearborn.

Those smiling faces belong to Belleville residents Valerie (Smith) Higgins and Denise Gray, sales associates in the cosmetic collections department and Revillon Fur Salon respectively.

The store opened its doors Feb. 23, and has been a hub of activities since. According to Mrs. Higgins, there have been many events since the opening. The store has played host to fashion designers Picone, Adolfo and Kasper, who turned out to show off their collections. Mary McFadden also stopped by to promote her lingerie, perfume and home accessories lines at Saks, as well as making a guest appearance on Channel 7's Kelley and Co., Mrs. Higgins said.

She added that other designers have been scheduled to visit the store, with Jean Marc slated for April 21 and an Active Sportswear mini-show for April 19.

While the store deals in top of the line cosmetics, designer fashions and some glassware and linens, it also is taking an interest in its "new home" area. On March 8 the store teamed up with the Michigan Humane Society to present Adolfo's spring-summer collection in the store, followed by a dinner-dance at the neighboring Hyatt Regency Hotel. The benefit raised some $50,000 for the beleaguered Humane Society.

The store also has a special children's program, Story Tellers, and puppet shows on Saturdays to entertain the youngest "shopping set". And to introduce them to the latest fashions, local youngsters were donned in clothing for a special Easter fashion show.

In the cosmetic collections department is the exclusive to Saks Adrien Arpel Treatment Room, which offers four kinds of facials, hair removal, complete beauty and makeup treatment and hand treatment, according to Mrs. Higgins.

A 1967 graduate of Belleville High School, she attended a 2-day school at the Southfield Hilton before assuming duties in the department's Clinique collection.

In explaining her department, which includes a full line of designer fragrances, she said Ida Steward of Estee Lauder will be at the store May 19 to do free makeup consultations. Chanel also had makeup representatives on hand.

Mrs. Gray, who worked five years with a furrier in Grosse Pointe before joining Saks, said the Revillon Furs are an exclusive with Saks. As a backdrop for the furs, the salon features imported French burl walnut paneling and similar plush furnishings.

So if you visit Saks in the coming weeks, stop by and say hi to Denise and Valerie, they're just waiting to meet you.

MSU College Week offers guides to women entering work force

Wherever in the world a woman might find herself faced with the need to earn a living — as a mother needing extra money for her family, or a woman made suddenly single through divorce or death — there is a College Week course to begin where she finds herself, and another to take her the next step.

College Week, June 16-19 this year, has been an annual event at Michigan State University for more than 50 years. It is sponsored by the Family Living Education program of the Cooperative Extension Service and by the MSU College of Human Ecology.

From the beginning, College Week has been designed to meet the contemporary needs of Michigan citizens. In the earliest days, College Week taught basic homemaking skills to rural women.

Now, coursework has expanded to deal with questions psychological and economical, from "Exploring the Inner Self: A Woman's Journey" to "The World of Investing — A Lot to Bear with a Little Bull."

For today's challenges, the classes are realistic and clear. "What Happens When Mothers Work?" will deal with the stress, guilt and changes in family relationships that occur when mothers go to work. For the women dealing with shaky self-confidence, "Work and Self-Confidence" will focus on psychological growth, illuminating the forces and relationships that thwart a woman's self-esteem.

financial matters, psychological adjustments and other details of living as a single. It will also outline how the woman who finds herself suddenly alone can develop a support system.

These classes are only the beginning. College Week offers some 55 classes in leadership, homemaking, family life, art, cooking and more.

For further information on how you can take advantage of the wide range of College Week courses and for registration forms, contact your Wayne County Cooperative Extension Service Office at 721-6565 or 563-2950.

About deadlines

As is the case with most human beings, we fail to see what we're not looking for or fail to see what we don't want to see.

In this particular instance we are referring to deadline notices which we attempt to print each week on the Suburban Living pages — boxed in notices that say "Suburban Living Deadline, Thursday, 2 p.m."

There's a reason for this deadline, be assured of that. We have to have time to prepare copy to be taken to the typesetters in our production office in Wayne.

With news coming across our desk and via the telephone throughout the day, there has to be time in which to write, re-write and edit copy as well as to compose heads and cutlines and plan layouts for the next issue.

We ask that you please try to remember that 2 p.m. Thursday is the cut-off time for accepting news which you expect to see in the following week's Suburban Living section. We will gladly take items after the deadline but, more likely than not, they will be a week late appearing in print.

Your cooperation will get your stories printed on time.

Stopping first at Tazewell, Tenn. they visited a relative, Don Sawyer, then went on to Knoxville where they visited Mrs. Ely's sister, Mrs. J. D. Nelson. At Kingsport they visited another cousin, Bill Sawyer. Enroute home through Middlesboro, Ky. they spent some time with Mrs. Gubaci's paternal grandmother, Mrs. Ethel Ely. They report good weather and cheaper gas.

On Saturday, April 12, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Stevens of East Huron River Drive entertained the latter's mother, Mrs. Chester Shoup, and a sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Knoblauch, all of Morenci. The occasion was in celebration of the 88th birthday of the ladies' mother, Mrs. Shoup. Miss Suzanne Stevens of Liberty Street was also among the family group.

Having sold their home in Dearborn, Mr. and Mrs. Jay Murphy have moved into a recently-purchased home on East Huron River Drive.

Mrs. Howard (Pearl) McQuaid of Second Street enjoyed cake and ice cream with members of her family, April 11 at the East Huron River Drive home of her daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Adams, in celebration of her 83rd birthday.

Mrs. Joseph Spring recently returned home after having spent some time in Oregon with her son John and his wife, Mildred and their son Richard and wife, Susan, at North Bend. She also spent some time with grandson, Roger and wife Debbie, at Salem and friends in Eugene, Coos Bay and North Bend.

While there, four April birthdays in the Spring family, including hers, were celebrated. The main topic for conversation on there besides politics was what Mount St. Helen's would decide to do next.

Party marks 85th year

A life-long resident of the Belleville-Willow area, Mrs. Fannie Vandecar of Haggerty Road looks over just a few photographs of her large family which includes seven children, 34 grandchildren and 43 great-grandchildren. Mrs. Vandecar was the honored guest April 13 at a party marking her 85th birthday. Hosted by her children, the celebration was held at the Willow United Methodist Church where Mrs. Vandecar has been a member for many years. Some 200 relatives and friends were on hand to congratulate the octogenarian and to enjoy the special cake made by Mrs. Gordon Conklin of Salem. Party planners included Mrs. George (Lena) Conklin of Belleville; Leland Vandecar of New Boston; Mrs. Joseph (Doreene) McLeod of Belleville; Mrs. Scott (Lila) Templeman of Dearborn Heights; Kenneth Vandecar of Atlanta, Ga., and Mrs. William (Shirley) Olson and Mrs. Robert (Barbara) Mitchell, both of Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Randy Noll of Edison Street, Belleville, are proudly announcing the birth of their first child, a daughter, on March 22 at Women's Hospital in Ann Arbor.

and Catherine Eileen made her debut March 23, weighed in at 6 lbs., 13 ozs. and measured 20 inches.

She is the new granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Alan Noll of Madison Heights and Mr. and Mrs. Bruno Belletti of Pittsburgh, Pa.

Great-grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Walter Noll of Edison Street, Belleville, and Mrs. Catherine Norris of Pittsburgh, Pa.

Next year, when Darwin and Christine Loyer send in their income tax, the form will include an additional deduction — their son, who was born on April 15.

The Loyers, who reside on Elwell Road in Belleville, welcomed their first child at 1:36 a.m. at Women's Hospital in Ann Arbor. The 6 lb., 15 1/4 oz. baby was titled "Daniel Leslie."

This arrival also made time-time grandparents of two Belleville couples, Robert and Odalee Hoeft of Wabash Street and Les and Sophie Loyer of Bemis Road.

The new mother is the former Christine Hoeft.

VFW group entertains at VB Home

The Sgt. Howard S. Oakman VFW Post 82 and Auxiliary of Livonia were pleased to entertain the residents at the Van Buren Convalescent Center in Belleville during the Easter holiday.

Marilyn Bain, Auxiliary chaplain, played the piano for a sing-along while other members passed out Easter eggs to all the residents. Marvin Cashion, Commander of Oakman Post, presented the home with an American flag after which the group recited the Pledge of Allegiance and sang the national anthem.

Also participating in the program were Auxiliary Hospital Chairman Elaine Cashion and Rehabilitation Chairman Dorothy Stickel.

'House of Woo'

Owner's hard work pays off at Chinese-American eatery

By JIM BRADLEY
ANP Feature Writer

Ed Woo was taught the virtue of hard work by his father as he grew up in his birthplace of Canton, China.

He also learned pleasing manners, a winning smile and a generous spirit.

Today, some 43 years later, as owner of House of Woo in Canton (Michigan) those time-tested virtues have helped to build a thriving Chinese-American Restaurant.

"My philosophy is that when you have your health, you should work hard and teach the next generation to do the same," says the dark-haired Woo, flashing his ever-present smile.

And he practices what he preaches.

Brought to America at the age of 13, Ed attended Detroit public schools, graduating from Detroit Northern High School. His father, See, owned two Chinese Restaurants in Detroit — Rice Bowl on Grand River Avenue and Great China on Gratiot — where Ed learned the restaurant business as a teenager.

"I went to high school during the day, worked four hours after school each day and then did my homework before I went to bed. It showed me that hard work pays off and I encourage everyone to learn the virtue of putting in a good day's work," he explained.

Even though Ed learned the restaurant business "from the ground up" in various jobs in his father's Rice Bowl eatery, he still had thoughts of studying engineering.

"When I was 18 years old, I thought I would go into engineering, but my father encouraged me to go to business school and continue in restaurant management.

"I told my dad that I learned more from him than I could from going to any business school — and I decided to stay in this business." That made his mother, Dicksoon, very happy also.

Woo started as manager of the Rice

Ed Woo, a disciple of hard work, pleasing manners and generous spirit, stands in front of his House of Woo Cantonese-American Restaurant at 44011 Ford Road, one block east of Sheldon Road, in Canton.

Bowl and was there until March 1979 when he opened House of Woo, 44011 Ford Road, in Canton. In the meantime, his father sold Great China Restaurant and retired. Ed's wife, Yukiko, now manages Rice Bowl while Ed serves as host and owner of his new restaurant venture here.

And he still knows how to work hard.

"You have to work hard to stay on top of it," admits Woo, who likes to bowl and read in his few spare moments. When he and his wife get some rare time off, they like to go bowling. But their moments together are not as often as they would like.

"I put in about 60 hours a week here at the restaurant. It's a challenge — but you meet a lot of interesting people and a lot of nice people. It's really what I like doing," he says warmly, making his interviewer feel at home.

Woo says he chose his birthplace's namesake — Canton — because it was recommended so highly by many of his friends who have moved here. "Canton is a very nice community to have our restaurant," says the Canton resident who moved to the township last year after living 10 years in Livonia.

"We have been treated very well by all the township officials and they have encouraged us in every way. They helped us every way they could when we started last year."

Woo says business is increasing every month and the present economic slump has not affected his business in the slightest. His growing list of customers includes many well-known people around Canton as well as more and more residents who drop in to try his specialties of Almond Chicken and Chicken Hong Kong.

Seating approximately 100 people, House of Woo is tastefully decorated with black and red leather covered booths in one section and tables in the other.

Restaurant offers variety

The front section has tables covered with dressy linen tablecloths and customers are given linen napkins. A banquet room is available for parties.

A very moderate-priced luncheon menu is served from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m., offering both Cantonese and American food. In addition to the restaurant's specialty of Almond boneless chicken, many low-priced introductory Chinese combination plates are offered to customers wanting new taste treats. Also, such American meals as pork chops, veal cutlet, chopped sirloin, omelettes, fish and chips and French Fried Shrimp are available at prices between $2.45 and $3.15.

Sandwiches and appetizers are also offered.

The dinner menu lists American dishes like steaks and chops, seafood, chicken, barbecued spare ribs, fried veal cutlets and a wide variety of sandwiches. In addition, House of Woo offers as wide a selection of Chinese food as any restaurant in the entire Detroit metropolitan area. American and exotic cocktails, beer, wine and all other alcoholic drinks are available.

Serving the tasty, well-prepared dishes are waitresses Hi Sook, a Korean young lady, Diana, Gail, Jeanie, Mickey and Dawn, supervised by hostess Nancy Yee. Hours are 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. Monday through Thursday, 11 a.m. to midnight on Fridays, noon to midnight on Saturdays and from noon until 10 p.m. on Sundays. Also, carry-out menus and full catering service are available.

"More and more people are hearing about our restaurant and are bringing their friends here, too," Woo says earnestly. "Most of all, we believe in giving our customers good food at good prices in a nice, comfortable atmosphere."

But although their restaurant means a great deal to them, Ed and Yukiko Woo are even more proud of their four children. Their oldest son, Rae, is 28 and lives in Canton with his wife, Sharon. Tommy, 21, and his wife, Mary, live in Redford and he is attending Wayne State University law school.

Daughter Cathy, 20, lives with her husband in Waterford, while youngest son, Paul, 18, is taking restaurant training to follow in his father's footsteps.

Hard work and accomplishment runs through the entire line of the Woo family. Ed's two brothers and two sisters also have accomplished quite a bit.

His brother, Bob, is an engineer with Rockwell International and Edwin, his other brother, a graduate of Yale University, works for the government in Wash. D.C. "I am very proud of Edwin," says Ed. "He was offered more than $60,000 a year salary by a private law firm but he turned it down to make about one-third of that to work for the U.S. government."

Ed's two sisters have taught school for several years. Kim still teaches at Cooley High School in Detroit, but Doris, who is married to a doctor, resigned from teaching and is now raising a family in Warren.

The successful owner and host of House of Woo is very patriotic and owes a lot to America. "I love this country and it is still the best place where anyone can work hard and become whatever he wants to be. All it takes is good old-fashioned hard work and you can become a success," Woo says with a big smile.

Ed Woo is living proof of that truth.

Al Hirt to head festival series

Dixieland trumpeter Al Hirt leads off a host of popular entertainers at the Meadow Brook Music Festival's Friday night variety series June 27.

The hillside pavilion will come alive with the varied musical sounds of jazz, folk, country and swing, plus an appearance by one of America's favorite comics.

The Kingston Trio and Mary Travers, well known for her work with Peter, Paul and Mary, help the Meadow Brook crowd celebrate the 4th of July, followed by fireworks.

On July 11, three of the greatest jazz bands of all time will come together; Lionel Hampton and his orchestra, Buddy Rich and his band, and Woody Herman and his Thundering Herd.

Loretta Lynn, whose life story is told in the new movie, "Coal Miners Daughter" will appear July 18 on a program with fellow country singer Buck Owens.

On Aug. 1, song stylist Nancy Wilson appears with the Duke Ellington Orchestra conducted by Mercer Ellington.

The ever popular Preservation Hall Jazz band "marches with the saints" on July 25.

Broadway musical-comedy star Carol Channing arrives Aug. 8 to delight the festival audience.

Tex Beneke and His Orchestra swing into Meadow Brook Aug. 15 for a nostalgic salute to the Big Band sounds of the '40s. Beneke is joined by singers Helen Forest, Johnny Desmond and the Modernaires.

The Friday variety series will be brought to an hilarious close Aug. 22, by comedian, Bill Cosby.

The festival runs from June 26 through August and includes a Thursday-Saturday symphonic series, Sunday pops and children's concerts, plus a number of non-series specials. Concerts are held in the Baldwin Pavilion on the Oakland University campus in Rochester with entrances on Walton Boulevard and Adams Road. More than 7,000 people can be seated in the pavilion and on the lawn.

All Friday performances begin at 8:30 p.m. with the grounds opening at 6 p.m. for picnicking or dining at Trumbull Terrace.

Information on season subscriptions and a brochure can be obtained by calling the Meadow Brook box office at 377-2010.

An elegant, informal pleasant atmosphere greets customers of House of Woo in Canton. Divided into two sections, the front part seats diners at tables graced with linen tablecloths and linen napkins. Wayne-Westland theatre production

'Gamma Rays' is lively drama

By GAIL JORGENSEN
ANP Special Writer

Gamma Rays. That's what turned mild-mannered Dr. Banner into "The Incredible Hulk," wasn't it?

And then there's "The Effect of Gamma Rays on Man-In-The-Moon Marigolds," the play currently presented by the Wayne-Westland Civic Theatre at the John Glenn High School Auditorium.

It's definitely not a comic book story. No one bursts out of his clothes and gets green and growly.

But life's hardships have had just as devastating an effect on the personality of Beatrice, the mother in the production. Disillusioned and bitter, she takes her frustrations out on her two daughters, Tillie and Ruth.

The play, by Paul Zindel, won the Pulitzer Prize for drama in 1971. It gets its strange title from an experiment her science class. Marigold seeds exposed to varying degrees of cobalt-60 are planted to see how they would grow.

Obviously there is a parallel between the strange and stunted flowers in the experiment and the three people trying desperately to survive in spite of each other.

Annette Parent gives a wonderful performance as Beatrice. She's only in her mid-twenties, yet when she wraps that dishrag around her curlers, she thoroughly wraps her mind and body into the character of the 40-or-so-year-old woman. Her voice rises and twists through Beatrice's turns and tempers so perfectly it is almost like watching a reality.

Annette's younger sister, Lorraine Parent, plays Ruth, the daughter recently recovered from a mental breakdown. She also does an excellent job.

The play is mainly a psychological drama, with more dialogue than action, but Lorraine's strong stage presence and animation keeps things lively.

Casting a girl who's only in fifth grade for the part of Tillie surprised me, yet it gives the play a slightly more hopeful mood. Although Wendy Kulczycki was overshadowed by the other two women, her naivete and childish enthusiasm made a very interesting contrast. And she sure can cry convincingly!

There are only two other minor characters in the play. High school senior Dawn Rice turns herself into an amazingly ancient "Nanny" (a boarder at Beatrice's house), and Shannon McNulty is suitably smug as Janice Vickery, the girl who'd boil a cat to use the skeleton for her science project.

Incidentally, the use of the stretched-cloth screen, behind which Tillie and Janice seem to float as they give their speeches, was eerily dramatic.

Director Gail Susan Mack deserves to be proud of this poignant and professional production.

"Gamma Rays" will be presented again this Friday and Saturday nights at 8 p.m. at the John Glenn High School Auditorium (on Marquette just west of Wayne Rd.). Tickets are $3.50 for adults and $2 for students and senior citizens.

Revue to play benefit for MD

The Lone Star Revue band will wage its annual war against muscular dystrophy on May 4 at Rich's Country Inn in Sumpter Township.

Regularly featured at the club Friday thru Sunday, the Revue helped raised some $7,000 last year in the fight against MD, including $1,300 at Rich's.

Among the other local bands that will participate in the jamboree are Paul Webb and Young Country, Kasey Clark, Kelly Hall and Southbound, Bonded and Branded Deep South.

According to Kenny Lang, bass player and lead vocalist for Lone Star Revue, the band hopes to help raise $3,000 at the Inn this year. Lang and country music disc jockey Michael Kelly have vowed to get brush haircuts in front of the crowd should that goal be reached.

"Jerry Lewis inspired me as I'm sure he has many people," said Lang in explaining the group's involvement in the MD cause. "He's a public personality and in a great position to help these kids."

"If we all pull together we can affect a cure for MD so that these little kids won't have to suffer any longer," he added. "It's the least we can do to show how thankful we are to be healthy and wish to share the feeling of good health."

Rich's Country Inn is located at the corner of Sumpter and Willow Roads. The benefit jamboree is scheduled from 2 p.m. until 2 a.m.

Free camping guides are now available

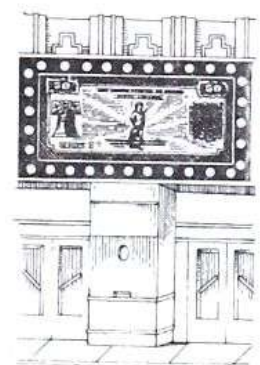

Free copies of the state's 1980 camping directories, which list 70 private campgrounds and 101 recreational vehicle service locations, are available from the Michigan Association of Recreational Vehicles and Campgrounds (MARVAC).

The campgrounds directory pinpoints locations on a state map and offers directions for reaching each site.

A companion directory lists addresses and phone numbers of Michigan dealers who can serve recreational vehicles in case of road emergencies.

To obtain the directories send a self-addressed and stamped business-size envelope to RV Directories, MARVAC, 19045 Farmington Road, Livonia 48152.

ARIES March 21-April 20
This is the week to make that move you've been planning. You have all the support you need, go ahead, but remember common sense beats hunches.

TAURUS April 21-May 21
You have to make an extra attempt to be understood, by an in-law perhaps, or a family member. Take the time necessary, the results are worth it. Be open-minded to compromises.

GEMINI May 22-June 21
If something is important enough to you, you will take full responsibility for it and now. If you don't care about the credit... which you do... let another do it and get the rewards.

CANCER June 22-July 23
This week should be full of socializing and attention to you. Remember to be graceful about it and handle it with poise. Let others pat you on the back, don't try to reach yourself.

LEO July 24-August 23
This is one of the few times I'd suggest following your hunches and first impressions. Home is highlighted, concentrate on the changes you promised yourself.

VIRGO August 24-Sept. 23
Now that things have come to a sort of equilibrium, make plans for that trip or vacation. If you put it off much longer, other things come up and delay it indefinitely.

LIBRA Sept. 24-Oct. 23
Concentrate on savings instead of spending right now. This is a tough week for you, even the weekend is a bit tight. Rather than making a down payment on something, bank the cash.

SCORPIO Oct. 24-Nov. 22
Call in old promises, debts and favors in order to really get off to a good start on a new project. Don't demand help, just ask. What is offered will at least be sincere.

SAGITTARIUS Nov. 23-Dec. 21
You are faced with several problems this week and the solution lies closer than you imagined. Take the time to think things through carefully and it comes to you. Weekend is smooth.

CAPRICORN Dec. 22-Jan. 20
Get any necessary work done at the beginning of the week and set the latter part of the week and weekend aside for social engagements. You are offered a few, accept on most.

AQUARIUS Jan 21-Feb. 19
Your worst mistake this week is to stick to the rules as they are written. Don't close yourself to new, time-and energy-saving ways to accomplish the same thing.

PISCES Feb. 20-March 20
You aren't in the best of moods this week, it's been building for some time now. Avoid friction or arguments, damage is great if it happens. Isolate yourself this weekend.

April 27-May 3

'Hello Dolly' opens Friday

Ladywood High School, 14680 Newburgh Road in Livonia, will present the musical production, "Hello Dolly," on Friday, Saturday and Sunday. Evening performances will begin at 8:00 p.m. and the Sunday matinee will start at 2:00 p.m.

Thornton Wilder's play, "The Matchmaker," was the inspiration for the musical, "Hello Dolly," written by Michael Stewart with music by Jerry Sherman. This fun-filled comedy takes place in the 1890's and tells the story of widow, Dolly Levi, matchmaker extraordinaire, as she puts her hand in here and there to bring people together.

She sets her own cap for the Yonker's skinflint, feed and hay store owner, Horace Vandergelder. The crazy, mixed-up day on the town for Dolly, Horace, and his two workers, Cornelius and Barnaby, makes this musical an all time favorite.

Playing the role of Dolly will be Jayne Persico of Dearborn and Anne Grobosky of Westland; Horace by Ron Reid of Redford; Irene by Victoria Bleggi of Northville and Kathie Copland of Livonia; Cornelius by Richard Copland of Livonia; Minnie by Lisa Apaczynski and Chris Copland of Livonia; Barbaby by Bob Dorfman of South Lyon; Ermengarde by Peggy McGillis of Livonia and Pauline Doohan of Northville; Ernestina by Karen Mysliwiec of Livonia and Maria Flack of Detroit; Rudolph by Gary Burton of Garden City. The musical is directed by Patricia Canfield.

For further information please contact Ladywood High School, at 591-1544.

STARVIEW

Do child actors always become adult actors?

By RUTH THOMPSON

The announcement that Ricky Schroder will star in a remake of "Little Lord Fauntleroy" assures that his career didn't end with last year's remake of "The Champ," in which he co-starred with Jon Voight. But does it assure a lifetime acting career for the youngster? Not unless there's strong inner motivation to stay with acting, plus luck.

Freddie Bartholomew, who was in the 1936 "Little Lord Fauntleroy" starred in a couple of other biggies in his moppet days ("Captains Courageous" and "David Copperfield") but turned his back on acting when he grew old enough to make his own decisions. He went on to become an executive in an advertising agency.

The second lead, however, was Mickey Rooney, whose star never shone brighter than this season with his major Broadway hit, "Sugar Babies," to his credit and recent accolades and an Oscar nomination for his performance in "The Black Stallion" on the big screen.

As Rooney himself pointed out recently in a television interview with Gene Shalit on NBC's "Today," he gets no residual payments from his old "Andy Hardy" films that are still re-running on television all over the world. But he's not bitter. They did ease him -- and the late Judy Garland, too -- through what for too many former child stars were the "awkward" early teen years when many (including even Shirley Temple) found their former audiences melted away almost as fast as their own baby fat.

While it's true that Henry Winkler as The Fonz, though convincing, was way over-age at the start as a high school dropout, it was perfect for Ron Howard, Donny Most and the rest of the gang who really were teen-agers when the series bowed. Ron, who as a little tyke was beloved as Opie, in Andy Griffith's long-run Mayberry days, said at 11 he didn't know if he wanted to be an actor when he grew up or play baseball. By 12 he seems never to have thought of baseball as a money-maker again, too busy acting.

Jodie Foster, Kristy McNichol, and Tatum O'Neal have struck no roadblocks either with the latter two now co-starring in the movie "Little Darlings." Credit two things (in addition to the basic talents and good looks of all three) with their employability. Television did well by both Jodie and Kristy at circa 12 and 13, what with worthy afterschool specials and that searching series "Family." The second factor? A public taste for toughness in pubescents and not-so-sweet 16s, the staple of such films as "Taxi" and "Little Darlings."
